MARINES KILL TEN MORE OF SANDINO BAND IN AIR RAID

Fliers, Operating With Land Forces, Disperse Insurgents by Dropping Bombs.

FOUR OF SOMOTILLO DESERTERS ARE SLAIN

Civilian Interpreter for U. S. Forces, an English Soldier of Fortune, Shot to Death.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Marine Corps aviators operating in conjunction with land forces against Gen. Sandino in Nicaragua have killed 10 more of the latter's forces by aerial bombing, according to a message to the Navy Department from Rear Admiral Sellers, commanding the special service squadron in Nicaraguan waters.

The message said the aviators on Wednesday located a group of Sandino's followers at Latna Vista, near the point where they ambushed Marines Jan. 1. The bombing attack followed another on Tuesday, in which the aviators killed nine members of Sandino's army in the neighborhood of Quilali, as they attempted to concentrate, supposedly for an attack on the Marines holding that village.

Admiral Sellers reported that a detachment of Marines is moving from Quilali to San Albino. The Marines are endeavoring to take over and garrison as many villages as possible to deprive Sandino of a base and cut him off from supplies.

Deserters Overtaken and Killed by National Guard.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 12.—Details of the capture of four deserters at Somotillo, Sunday, by Nicaraguan National Guardsmen, were received at Marine Corps headquarters here yesterday.

The official report is that nine men attempting to desert, were overtaken by loyal members of the guard at Somotillo. In a sharp encounter four deserters were killed and two were mortally wounded. Five, apparently including the wounded men, escaped toward Honduras with rifles and a machine gun.

Among the deserters killed was a corporal who had persuaded the others to desert.

Marines now occupy Somotillo. Col. Luis Mason Gulick, Marine Corps commander, says that all is now quiet in that section.

Roy A. Johnstone, civilian interpreter for Marines at Quilali, was killed Monday by insurgents. It was reported to Marine headquarters. Johnstone was killed near the rear headquarters of Gen. Sandino, taken from him by Marines Dec. 20.

The interpreter, said to have been an Englishman, was for many years a soldier of fortune in Central America. He arrived in Nicaragua last November from Salvador, where he had been employed in the railway service. His wife and two children were with him.

Johnstone joined the Marines as an interpreter and was sent to Quilali by airplane Nov. 25. He was familiar with Central American fighting since he had served in the Mexican Revolution and was known in the region.

Johnstone was killed by Sandino's outposts when on his way to El Hicaro.

New York Banks Lent $1,000,000 to Nicaragua Government Last March.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—At the Nicaraguan legation yesterday it was stated that approximately $1,000,000 loan granted by the Government of Nicaragua last March by the Guaranty Trust Co. and J. & W. Seligman & Co., both of New York.

Manuel Zavala, first secretary of the legation, said the loan was offered to the Nicaraguan Government last March by the New York bankers. It was approved by the Nicaraguan Congress March 25 and was signed immediately by President Diaz. On March 29 President Diaz appointed a committee to supervise the expenditure of this fund.

Originally the loan was for one year, but a six-month extension was granted by the bankers. Later the Diaz Government has been able to pay back about $100,000 a month, and it now hopes to have the entire debt liquidated by June 1. The funds are obtained from

SUNDAY DRAWING BIGGER CROWDS TO THE COLISEUM

Sermon on "Backsliders" Attracts One of the Largest Audiences of the Revival.

Nearly everyone in the Coliseum stood when Bill Sunday, winding up a lively sermon on "Backsliders" last night, called for church people who meant to do better.

The gathering was larger than usual, probably 6500 or more as compared to 5200 on earlier nights. Sunday had them going from the start, and his grin showed that he knew it.

Well-fitted collars, well-knotted neckties and tastefully dressed women were in majority. It might have been a congregation in a West End church, except for the scarcity of empty pews. A university professor sat in the second row center. For a while his eyes bored the acrobatic evangelist like gimlets, but soon he seemed to be getting as much kick out of it as anyone.

Jeremiah 2, 19, provided the text: "Thine own wickedness shall correct thee, and thy backslidings shall reprove thee." The sermon was unusually devoid of epigrammatic fireworks, but in the way of mimicry it was a regular Fourth of July.

Acting Out a Story. "It was Christmas eve in the country," he said, and he was the old farmer sitting down at the fireplace, going to the window and pressing his face against the cold pane as he remembered the lost daughter; he was the fallen daughter creeping into a church in town; he was the rabbi's preacher, "abhorring evil and clinging to his commentaries," again he was the woman, racked with coughing, and then he was the gruff but friendly cop; he was the prodigal spending the last of his gotten gains to go home; he was the old dog, licking her face and remembering, and then he was the mother taking her in his arms.

He was a doddering libertine, whining a faletto "Don't be too hard on human nature." He was a gambler, a down-and-out, an infidel backwoodsman "who could spit 30 feet and hit a fly."

When he told the story about the switching of speckled trout and rotten codfish twice between the farm and the minister's house, so that the farmer concluded, "You may be speckled trout in the country, but you're rotten codfish in town," he was everybody but the trout and the codfish. And all the time he was the evangelist shouting that life was full of half-done things and people, and calling upon the righteous but drowsy to come to life.

Prodding the Churches. "There is enough dormant, dreamy faith in the churches to shake the world if God could get hold of it," he said. "That's what wraps the preacher in pathos. He stands up before his congregation and sees so much unused faith. Religion has become passe. Churches have depreciated their own spiritual standards. They have adjusted themselves to society instead of demanding that society trim itself to meet the standards of God. We're weak sisters; that's what!"

The large and increasingly well trained choir under the genial capable direction of Homer Rodeheaver, "yells" by about 200 pupils of Normandy High School, the first group to make a reservation for the meetings, and singing of a spiritual in antiphony between "Rody" and mellow-voiced but vehement Negroes in the rear balcony, had the gathering in a glowing mood before Sunday began his sermon. Fred Naeter, Cape Girardeau editor and promoter of Sunday's meetings there, forecast from the pulpit that next week there would be "more people outside trying to get in than there are inside."

"Home," which Sunday considers one of his best sermons, is to be given tonight at 7:30. His wise cracks on home, marriage, womanhood and the double standard have been among the most applauded. The topic for this afternoon was "Quelling a Rebellion." Attendance at afternoon meetings has averaged 3000. The evangelist is to speak next Thursday morning at Almad Temple, East St. Louis, and a reservation for the services that evening at the Coliseum has been made by the Rotary Club of St. Louis.

DRIVER'S SENTENCE SET ASIDE

Punishment of 30 days in the Workhouse and a $200 fine set in police court against Edgar L. Sutterfield of 4037 West Pine boulevard on charges of driving while intoxicated and careless driving, was set aside yesterday by Judge Gayer, who found the defendant not guilty. Sutterfield was arrested Dec. 1 at Kingshighway and Delmar boulevard.

A police court conviction for driving while intoxicated and a sentence of 30 days in the Workhouse and a fine of $100 for William J. Quinn, a paperhanger, of 2011 Ohio street, was sustained by Judge Gayer.

RESULTS OF TEST MANEUVER TOLD IN S-4 INQUIRY

Witnesses Who Re-Enacted "Scene Before Crash" Testify Regarding Visibility and Distances.

BOARD RESUMES INVESTIGATION

Had Receded to Let Destroyer and Submarine Fix Time Elements in Cases of Emergencies.

By the Associated Press. BOSTON, Jan. 13.—After a recess from Wednesday to make possible a re-enactment of the collision between the coast guard destroyer Paulding and the submarine S-4 off Provincetown Harbor, the naval court of inquiry investigating the disaster reconvened today at the Boston Navy Yard.

The destroyer Monaghan and the submarine S-6 yesterday went over the courses of the vessels which collided on Dec. 17.

Capt. H. D. Cooke, assistant commandant of the First Naval District, testified, in describing his observations during yesterday's tests, that with seven-power glasses he had observed the periscopes of the S-6 at a distance of 200 yards. After discarding the glasses, he was able to sight the periscopes at a distance of 600 yards, although it had been possible to see something moving through the water at a considerably greater distance. The visibility was excellent, sea smooth, weather fair and the wind a slight northeast breeze.

Reports Results of Tests. The witness said a test to determine the time required for the destroyer to slow down from a speed of 18 knots to one knot or less disclosed that the operation required 1 minute, 12 seconds. To put the helm of the destroyer full right required 7 seconds. After 5 seconds the bow of the destroyer was 20 degrees and after 20 seconds the change was 22 degrees.

In response to questions by Commander Leslie E. Bratton, Judge Advocate, Capt. Cooke said that under the weather conditions prevailing on Dec. 17 he probably would have been able to sight the periscopes with glasses at a distance of from 500 to 800 yards and without glasses at a distance of from 200 to 500 yards in each case, the estimate depended on whether he actually was looking for periscopes, at the time. If he had not been looking specifically for periscopes, he said, the distances would be cut in half in each case. Describes Imaginary Emergency.

The witness said that if he were in command of a destroyer making 18 knots, and suddenly noticed the periscopes of a submarine 200 feet away, one point off the port bow, he would back full speed, first giving the order "full right rudder." He would feel that a collision was inevitable unless the submarine submerged before the destroyer reached her.

Commander W. H. Lassing of the staff of the First Naval District, who also was an observer on the Monaghan, followed Capt. Cooke. From the starboard side of the bridge of the Monaghan, the witness said, he picked up the periscopes of the S-6, 21 minutes, 25 seconds after the trial run started. Immediately afterward he was able to distinguish the "feather" of the periscopes with the naked eye.

Witnesses' Testimony Differ. Lassing says that conditions prevailing on Dec. 17 would have affected the visibility of the periscopes materially. He would not estimate the distance at which he could sight periscopes in rough weather if he were not looking for them.

Commander Lassing differed from Capt. Cooke as to the manner in which he would act if he saw a submarine a point on the port bow heading across the bows of his destroyer 200 feet ahead. He said he would order the rudder hard left and back at full speed. A collision would be practically certain, he said.

SLOT MACHINES REAPPEAR AFTER GRAND JURY ADJOURNS

Operators of Devices in County Put Them in Use Again When No Action Is Taken.

Slot machines in St. Louis County are pawns in the game of "now you see it and now you don't." They have made their reappearance in stores, roadhouses and lunchrooms in many sections of the county, following adjournment of the annual grand jury last Saturday. They disappeared from public view when the grand jury was convened, as the operators, who place them with merchants under varying terms of return, did not wish to arouse official wrath. The grand jury returned no indictments for gambling of any sort, although commercial gambling houses exist in the county, and reported that conditions in general were wholesome.

FORMER OFFICER OF IRONWORKERS ACQUITTED AGAIN

Harry Jones, Ex-Secretary and Treasurer, Unlikely to Be Tried Third Time for Embezzlement.

HIS ATTORNEY FINED $100 FOR CONTEMPT

Accused Man Admits Making False Entry of $400 but Declares Money Was Used to Pay Bodyguards.

Harry Jones, former secretary-treasurer of the International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers, was acquitted of a charge of embezzlement by a Circuit Court jury last night.

He was acquitted of another embezzlement charge last May. A third charge is pending, but may not be prosecuted.

Jones was accused, in his second trial, of converting to his own use $400 of union funds which he obtained on a false death claim in 1924. He admitted making a false entry in the matter. But explained this was a common device of the union to cover up certain expenditures. In this instance, he said, the $400 was expended for two body guards for Paul J. Morrin, the union president.

Morrin, a witness in rebuttal, denied the $400 was so used. When Morrin admitted he had served a prison term after his conviction in the McNamara dynamite conspiracy cases, he was denounced by Jones' attorney, Wayne Ely, who referred to the union as the "International Association of Dynamiters."

Attorney Ely was fined $100 for contempt by Judge Killgren after he had engaged in several controversies and shouted "liar" at Frank P. Walsh of Kansas City, special prosecutor. Ely promptly wrote out a check for the $100.

Jones is 55 years old, and resides at 308 Forest avenue, Webster Groves. He was an officer of the union from 1908 until ousted in 1925.

ST. LOUIS APATHETIC TO RIVER DEVELOPMENT, SAYS NEWTON
Declares Penalty Will Be Ultimate Business Supremacy of Lake Cities.

St. Louis still is apathetic to the possibilities of inland waterways transportation and the penalty will be ultimate business supremacy of lake cities which now know and profit by cheap water rates for freight. Cleveland A. Newton told members of the North St. Louis Business Men's Association last night.

His comment was provoked by the fact that many St. Louis firms which would benefit by the ultimate completion by the Federal Government of the Mississippi system of waterways are declining to contribute anything to the $50,000 fund now being raised as this city's contribution to the valley movement supporting pending legislation in Congress.

Newton said that New Orleans, half as populous as St. Louis, had agreed to match whatever St. Louis contributed, and that Kansas City, on a "spur" only of the waterways system, was giving as much as St. Louis. Chicago has in recent years been contributing 20 times St. Louis' contributions. Yet St. Louis is the seat of the Mississippi Valley Association through which improvements to the waterways system are being sought.

"Last year I was not feeling well at all of the time," said Mrs. J. E. Mulhern of 2100 Spruce St., Kansas City, Mo. "Finally I was advised to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and I did so. Now I am happy to know that there is such a wonderful medicine. After taking a small amount of the 'Prescription' I felt much better and had comparatively no suffering. I can highly recommend the 'Favorite Prescription' to mothers."

YALE WON'T PUNISH STUDENTS

Leaves City to Deal With 19 Arrested for Giving Out Handbills.
NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 13.—The 19 Yale students who were arrested Tuesday night for distributing handbills dealing with a labor controversy, here acted "discourteously to the city and to the residents of New Haven whom they should regard as their hosts while in the city," in the opinion of Prof. Clarence W. Mendell, dean of Yale University.

No action will be taken against the students by the University as the dean considers the matter is entirely between the city authorities and the men arrested.

Skinny, "Lifeless" Women Gain Weight

Gain Pounds of Weight with New YEAST and IRON in 3 Weeks — or Pay Nothing

If we could only show you the wonders that Ironized Yeast has done for thousands of men and women. The yeast has been used up with firm flesh, strong necks and beautiful, glowing, healthy skin. Pimples, boils and blotches have disappeared for good.

How Yeast and Iron Build Quick Weight
Ironized Yeast is two tonics in one — weight-building Yeast and strengthening Iron. The yeast is the same used in making malt, and which makes malt so beneficial. It is specially cultured yeast, concentrated, to give the utmost in flesh-producing value.

This Yeast is treated with pure, vegetable iron, the same as in spinach, lettuce and celery. In this form iron is easily assimilated by the body, making rich, red blood and giving up nerves and muscles.

Only when Yeast is ironized in this way is it most effective — for iron is needed to bring out the weight-building, strengthening values of Yeast. By this special formula Ironized Yeast gives you results in half the time required by yeast or iron taken separately.

Go to your druggist and get a handy bottle of 60 easy tablets today. Just a single course of treatment will prove that you can be attractive and healthy. Safe for everybody. They do not upset the stomach nor cause gas or bloating.

Try It on "Money-Back" Offer
Just ask your druggist for a full size treatment. If you are not delighted with the quick results, simply return the bottle. It will be refunded immediately. If convenient to buy from druggist, send $1.00 to the IRONIZED YEAST CO., Atlanta, Ga. Desk 193-11.

CAUTION! While the amazing health-building value of IRONIZED YEAST has been clearly and positively demonstrated in cases of lack of energy, indigestion, constipation, skin eruptions, poor complexion, and a generally weakened physical and mental condition, IRONIZED YEAST should not be used by anyone who OBJECTS to having weight increased to normal. © 1927—L. STRANGLER ACCUSED OF 22 DEATHS HANGED

He Pays Death Penalty for Murder of Winnipeg Woman.

By the Associated Press.
WINNIPEG, Jan. 13.—Earle Nelson, to whom police ascribe 22 murders, was hanged today for the murder of Mrs. Emily Patterson.

Nelson was known as "The Strangler" because he was believed to have strangled all his victims. Mrs. Patterson, mother of two children, was strangled June 10, 1927.

He also had been indicted for the killing of 14-year-old Lola Cowan, Winnipeg school girl, whom he was accused of strangling. Nelson maintained he was innocent to the last and said he forgave all those who had testified against him.

The trap was sprung at 7:41 o'clock. Fifteen minutes later he was pronounced dead. Nelson's defense at his six-day trial was insanity. Records were presented to show that the prisoner had been confined in an insane asylum in Napa, Cal., during various periods between 1921 and 1925. Nelson was composed as he marched to the scaffold between his guards. He spoke for a moment with the priest who accompanied him, then made a brief statement denying his guilt.

NEW FARM BILL LEAVES OUT PLAN FOR EQUALIZATION FEE Measure Introduced by Louisiana Man Provides for $400,000,000 Revolving Fund.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—A new farm bill, described by its author as practically similar to the McNary-Haugen measure except that it omits provision for an equalization fee, was introduced today by Representative Aswell of Louisiana, ranking Democrat on the House Agricultural Committee.

The bill calls for creation of a revolving fund of $400,000,000, of which $250,000,000 would be for payment of "losses, costs and charges arising under marketing agreements" and the remainder for loans to co-operative associations. The bill also is applicable to all agricultural commodities and provides for the appointment by the President of a Federal farm board, for creation of commodity advisory councils to assure complete representation of commodities, and for loans to control surpluses and acquire facilities for storage.

DRAWING OF HIGBEE WILL IS DESCRIBED

Deposition of Rhodes E. Cave Taken in Contest of Mrs.
Joseph Pulitzer.

Rhodes E. Cave, a former Circuit Judge, who drew the will for Mrs. Fannie H. Higbee, disposing of her $1,541,960 estate, which is being contested by Mrs. Joseph Pulitzer, told in a deposition yesterday of the circumstances under which the will was prepared.

Mrs. Higbee, the widow of Rufus
B. Higbee, died Jan. 18, 1927, aged
76. She bequeathed $500,000 to Mrs.
Pulitzer, $61,000 to other relatives, $50,000 to the Y. W. C. A., $50,000 to Bethesda Home and the residue of her estate to her sister, Mrs. Louisa H. Chapman of Detroit and the latter's children. Another sister, Mrs. Elizabeth W. Edgar, Mrs.
Pulitzer's mother, died before the will was made. Mrs. Chapman's son, Benjamin G. Chapman Jr., of 58 Kingsbury place, president of the American Central Insurance Co., was named executor.

Largely, Mrs. Higbee's wealth came from an inheritance from her uncle, William E. Pye, a dry goods merchant, who died in 1889, leaving his estate in trust for Mrs.
Higbee and Mrs. Chapman. He owned some stock in the old American Arithmetic Co. of St.
Louis, which later became the Burroughs Adding Machine Co. of Detroit. The increase in value of the American-Burroughs stock has been phenomenal and has enriched many persons.

Agreement With Bethesda.
Cave was questioned by Thomas M. Pierce of counsel for Mrs. Pulitzer, before Special Commissioner Joseph S. McIntyre. He related that Chapman, as trustee under Pye's will, was selling some downtown real estate several years ago.
Cave noticed then, he said, that a court decree of 1918 construing
Pye's will provided that Bethesda Home or some other charitable institution eventually was to receive one-half of the value of the estate as of the time of Pye's death. Burroughs stock dividends had increased the estate greatly since 1889.

"I suggested to Chapman," Cave went on, "that it would be well for Mrs. Higbee to come to some agreement with Bethesda as to how value of the estate as of 1889 was to be determined, to avoid questions after her death. He introduced me to Mrs. Higbee and a written agreement between her and Bethesda was made, which determined the value ($120,000) by which she agreed to make Bethesda the recipient of that charity. I suggested to her then that it would be proper for her to make a will to carry out that agreement.
That was in 1924.

"She gave me a former will she had executed and told me changes she wanted made (including the Bethesda bequest). I brought the new will, but she still would not sign it. I suggested to her then that I take it back to her the evening she executed it. My recollection is that Chapman brought the former will from safe deposit box in a sealed envelope. I am willing to produce a copy of that instrument, but do not know if the original exists. It was dated in 1923. I left the new will with Mrs. Higbee and don't recall whether she gave it to Chapman."

Cave said he did not discuss terms of the new will with Chapman. He related that Mrs. Higbee suggested the provision in the last will cutting off any beneficiary who contested, which was not in the former will. He told her that was a frequently used device.

Pye Trust Decree Set Aside.
On May 28 last a decree was entered in Circuit Court setting terminating the Pye trust estate and dividing the proceeds equally between Mrs. Chapman and Mrs.
Higbee's estate. Two days later, on motion of Mrs. Pulitzer and her sisters, this was set aside, on the contention that Mrs. Higbee had only a life interest in the Pye estate, and that litigation was still pending.

Cave testified that Mrs. Higbee never impressed him as being infirm or different physically from any normal woman of her age. He never observed her giving signs of infirmity, he said, but he was told she had a heart affection which might not trouble her for years or might cause sudden death.

Chapman told Cave, according to the latter, that he had a power of attorney from Mrs. Higbee and kept her accounts and bought accessories for her.

Thomas S. McPheters and Isaac
C. Orr, attorneys connected with Cave's firm, testified they accompanied Cave to Mrs. Higbee's apartment at 58 Kingsbury avenue evening about three years ago, when the three of them witnessed her last will. They described the occurrence and declared they observed nothing unusual about Mrs.
Higbee's physical or mental condition.

FRENCH AVIATORS REACH PANAMA FROM ECUADOR

Costes and Lebriz Land From Guayaquil and Will Be Greeted by Col. Lindbergh, Now at Colon.

ST. LOUISAN'S PLANE BEING OVERHAULED

Partly Disintegrated to Check the Motor Before the Flight to Venezuela Is Attempted.

By the Associated Press.
PANAMA, Jan. 13.—The French aviators, Costes and Lebriz, who flew across the South Atlantic, arrived here at 4:15 o'clock this afternoon on their 800-mile flight from Guayaquil, Ecuador.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh arranged to come here from Colon to greet them.

A large crowd had assembled at the field to meet the French flyers. The French Minister to Panama was in charge of the reception. The aviators left Guayaquil at 7:03 this morning, consuming 9 hours and 12 minutes in the flight.

"The Spirit of St. Louis," monoplane of Col. Lindbergh, was in the hands of mechanics today, being overhauled for further aerial adventures, the first to be a 999-mile hop to Caracas, Venezuela.

In army circles in the Canal Zone it was said that Col. Lindbergh would be spirited away for a two days' rest. He was stated to be very tired. He likely would be taken to Buquette, it was stated.

Buquette is that portion of the province of Chiriqui which includes the Barú volcano, now extinct. It is an ideal health resort because of its cool climate. It is 4999 feet above sea level and is noted for its coffee, strawberries and other fruits of a temperate climate.

Will Fly to Resting Place.
Lindbergh is expected to fly an army plane there, as the district is equipped with an air field.

"The Spirit of St. Louis" was partly dismantled, while mechanics at France Field, including one from the Wright factory, checked its motor.

The visit of Lindbergh and the scheduled arrival of the Frenchmen have aroused great interest here in aviation. President Chari and Vice President Duque are enthusiastic over their ride with Lindbergh. The Rotary Club has appointed a standing committee on aviation with James C. Drumm, manager of the National City Bank here, as chairman.

Outlines Possible Airlines.
In a speech at the Strangers' Club at Colon, Lindbergh predicted success for air lines in Panama, Central and South America, and said they would come soon. One of the Northern lines, down the Atlantic coast to Key West and Cuba, he suggested as a possible link. Other suggestions were connections with the proposed air line from New York to New Orleans and the Chicago-to-Dallas line, which connects with the transcontinental trunk line between New York and San Francisco.

He stressed the fact that it is not only necessary to establish the air lines, but to patronize them after they are in operation.

Venezuela is the next objective of Lindbergh, who flew from Panama City to Colon yesterday. If the people of Colon were gathered either at France Field or along the streets when Lindbergh arrived there and he passed along in his customary position of honor with marines and soldiers acting as guards and bands playing.

WOOD'S SUCCESSOR SAYS HE WILL CONTINUE OLD POLICY

Success in Philippines Depends on Continuity, New Governor-General Declares.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—A pledge to carry out the policies and ideals of his predecessor, the late Gen. Leonard Wood, was voiced last night by Henry L. Stimson, newly appointed Governor-General of the Philippine Islands.

"Success in the Philippines," he said at a dinner given in his honor by the National Republican Club, "depends upon continuity of policy and it is the duty and privilege of the people of the United States to see that Congress maintains that continuity."

He characterized Gen. Wood as the "most unselfish and noble figure ever to represent the United States in the Philippines," and promised to carry through Wood's ideals "to the limit of my ability."

FOR ARBITRATION IN STEEL
Schwab Says He Favors Settling Disputes Within Industry.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Charles M. Schwab, president of the American Iron and Steel Institute, speaking before the Lawyers' Club today, declared he would attempt to have the institute adopt a resolution embodying the principle of commercial arbitration throughout the steel industry.

He explained that by this plan, disputes arising in the trade would be settled before an arbitration board instead of being carried to the courts.

Hoodoo Meets a Mascot.
NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Persons superstitiously inclined arose with misgivings today—Friday, the thirteenth—but their spirits soared with the appearance of a perfect rainbow, omen of good luck, in the northwest sky. A springlike temperature of 43 degrees between 7 and 8 o'clock brought a shower which took even the Weather Bureau by surprise.

FRENCH REPLY ON ANTI-WAR TREATY READY FOR CABLEING

Kellogg's Conversations With Ambassador Claudel Have Advanced Subject Into a New Phase.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Jan. 13.—The reply of France to Secretary of State Kellogg's latest note on the proposed treaty to outlaw war was ready for cable transmission today. This was made possible, it was explained, for the reason that the note does not represent the actual state of negotiations, because conversations between Ambassador Claudel of France and Secretary Kellogg subsequent to its drafting have advanced the question into a new phase.

Although the text of the latest Kellogg note has not been published, enough of its substance is known to permit long and diverse comment in this morning's papers. All do not share in the optimism expressed in official circles, but all at least are agreed that the Kellogg note leaves the way wide open for the negotiation of some sort of agreement.

Details of Note Sent by Kellogg on Jan. 11.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—The United States renewed its invitation to France for a treaty declaration against wars of all kinds. In a note dated Jan. 11 and made public yesterday.

Secretary Kellogg took exception to Foreign Minister Briand's proposal, contained in the last French note, that the anti-war treaty deal only with "wars of aggression" and pointed out that this contradicts the original French memorandum of last June.

Secretary Kellogg quoted from this memorandum and suggested that further negotiations be based on "the original formula submitted by Briand which envisaged the unqualified renunciation of all war as an instrument of national policy."

"I am not informed of the reasons which have led your Government to suggest this modification of its original proposal," the note continued, "but I earnestly hope that it is of no particular significance and that it is not to be taken as an indication that the Government of France will find itself unable to join with the Government of the United States in proposing that the original formula submitted by Briand which envisaged the unqualified renunciation of all war as an instrument of national policy be made the subject of preliminary discussions with the other great powers."

For Multilateral Treaty.

The American note expresses great gratification over the French approval in principle of the American suggestion that the covenant be multilateral. "There can be no doubt that such a multilateral treaty would be a far more effective instrument for the promotion of pacific relations than a mere agreement between the United States and France alone, and if the present efforts of the two governments achieve ultimate success, they will have made a memorable contribution to the cause of world peace."

Discussing, however, the procedure proposed by the French to negotiate a multilateral treaty, namely that the United States and France sign the pact initially, the note says: "This procedure is open to the objection that a treaty, even though acceptable to France and the United States, might for some reason be unacceptable to one of the great powers. In such event the treaty could not come into force and the present efforts of France and the United States would be rendered abortive."

"It is by no means unreasonable to suppose that the views of the governments concerned could be accommodated through informal preliminary discussions and a text devised which would be acceptable to them all."

Four Other Powers Included.

In case the French Government accepted both the proposal to continue negotiations on the basis of the original Briand formula and the suggestion of including other powers in the conversations, Secretary Kellogg said he had "the honor to suggest that the government of France join with the Government of the United States in a communication to the British, German, Italian and Japanese Governments transmitting the text of Briand's original proposal and copies of the subsequent correspondence between the governments of France and the United States, for their consideration and comment."

Gas Fumes Kill Retired Grocer.

Morris Schurr, 67 years old, a retired grocer of 1734A Wagoner place, was found unconscious in his home yesterday, a blanket thrown over his head and gas flowing from a nearby heater. He died on the way to City Hospital. Mrs. Schurr said her husband had been in poor health.

REDUCES NAVAL ESTIMATE

WILBUR SAYS 20-YEAR BUILDING PLAN WILL COST $2,500,000,000

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Without giving details, Secretary of the Navy Wilbur told the House

Naval Committee yesterday that the Navy Department contemplated a 20-year warship construction program which on the basis of present day prices would cost about $168,000,000 annually, or, in the aggregate, in excess of $3,360,000,000.

From his office at the department last night, he issued a statement that his estimate was erroneous, and should have been about $129,000,000 a year at present prices. Spread over two decades, this would total slightly more than $2,580,000,000.

COMMISSION VETOES HIGHER FREIGHT RATES

Application of 8 Railroads on Intra-State Shipments Rejected.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 12.—Freight rate increases sought by eight railroads on intrastate shipments in Missouri, through proposed cancellation of existing commodities rates and substitution of higher class rates, were denied today by the State Public Service Commission which held that the railroads had failed to prove the proposed rates were justified.

The order made permanent a previous suspension by the commission of approximately 100 proposed new rate schedules. The commission vacated its suspension as to 12 proposed schedules, because they were not applicable to intrastate routes, were not in use, or for other reasons.

An estimate of the increase in freight charges that would have resulted had the new schedules been approved has not been completed by the commission, but it would involve a large sum annually. Shippers opposing the increases declared some of the proposed rates carried increases as high as 50 to 100 per cent over the existing rates.

The order was directed against the Santa Fe, Chicago & Alton, Burlington, Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, Rock Island, Missouri-Kansas-Texas, Missouri Pacific and the Wabash railroads. It also applied to all other carriers which would have participated in any of the proposed schedules.

Among the commodities affected by the proposed rates were petroleum and its products, lime, cement, plaster, brooms, wooden cases, strawboard, pulp wood, paper boxes and cartons, paper products, three and shrunken, drums and kegs, corn meal, green hides, tallow, ice, beverages, iron and steel articles, rubber, mahogany lumber, blasting powder, railway materials, unmanufactured tobacco, vehicles and other items.

The commission held that the railroads, in hearings before the commission, had failed to produce proof of the reasonableness of the rates. It held the burden of the proof rested on the companies, and that the evidence was "meager, general in nature, unsupported with collateral facts and wholly fails to justify the advanced rates." The rate schedules were filed by the railroads last in 1926 and were suspended by the commission in December, 1926, pending investigation. The suspensions were effective until Feb. 12, 1928. The order denying the increases and making the suspensions permanent becomes effective Jan. 19.

National Guard Quarters Robbed. COLUMBIA, Mo., Jan. 13.—Thieves entered the supply room of Headquarters Battery No. 128 here last night and escaped with 35 automatic pistols, several clips, a quantity of ammunition and several flashlights. The supply room is over a dairy company's office. The robbers entered by prying open a rear window. The thieves also broke the combination from the safe in the White Eagle Dairy Co. office and took $95. The Illinois Oil Co. office, three blocks north of the dairy, was robbed of $120 and a gold watch, taken from the safe.

WITNESS DEAD; DRIVER FREED

A $100 fine and 30 days in the Workhouse assessed against P.

nard Kreizer of 2915A Potomac street, in Police Court, on a charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated, Oct. 16, were set aside yesterday by Judge Gayer of the Court of Criminal Correction because the prosecuting witness, Motorcycle Patrolman Oliver Cook, had been killed while speeding on a holdup several weeks ago. Cook was the city's only witness.

SENATE GETS FIRST FLOOD CONTROL PLAN

Report Lacks President's and Army Experts' Approval, Davis Points Out.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—The first report of the Mississippi River Commission on Flood Control was sent to the Senate yesterday by Secretary of War Davis.

In a letter, submitted in response to a resolution by Senator Caraway (Dem.) of Arkansas, Davis pointed out the report contained recommendations for local contributions to flood control.

Caraway, in submitting his resolution requesting Davis to furnish to the Senate preliminary estimates or suggestions and recommendations, if any, or both the chief of engineers of the Army and the Mississippi River Commission on Flood Control, stated his action was prompted by rumors that two reports had been made, the first recommending that the Federal Government bear the entire expense of flood control.

"No written preliminary report was submitted to me by the chief of engineers," Davis said.

The report of the River Commission was called for by the chief of engineers, the Secretary said, for his assistance in preparing a comprehensive plan, which finally was submitted to Congress.

The Senate was informed by the Secretary that the report of the Commission as a whole was neither the approval of the chief engineers nor that of the President and himself.

CHURCH STANDS FIRM IN DEMANDS UPON MEXICO

Catholic Attitude Unaltered Declares Exiled Bishop Pascual Diaz in Interview in New York.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch
NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—Anything that Bishop Pascual Diaz says about the relations of the Roman Catholic Church and Mexico is important and interesting because he was secretary of the Roman Catholic Episcopate in Mexico and because, after his exile on a charge of having been the intellectual leader of the revolutionary Catholic movement, he went to Rome and made a first hand report to the Pope. There follows an article from the forthcoming issue of the Commonweal in which Bishop Diaz makes clear his opinion on "What the Church in Mexico wants." Michel Williams, editor of the Commonweal, describes it in his comment as "an authoritative statement from the spokesman of the Mexican Bishops."

THE statement lately made by one of the New York newspapers that "until there is peace between church and state in Mexico there will not be complete peace in Mexico and there will not be untroubled understanding between Mexico and the United States" seems to me very significant. One cannot help feeling that the American people, now convinced that there exists no likelihood of war between themselves and the republic to the south, are ready to view with bias the facts in the terrible religious and social conflict which has been in progress during more than a year. This is certainly one good result of the present campaign for good will in which Col. Lindbergh has played such an important part.

This statement, coming from Bishop Diaz, leader of the Mexican hierarchy, to a representative of the Commonweal, seems to constitute a significant and almost unparalleled rapprochement between Catholic opinion regarding Mexico and general opinion regarding Mexico. Bishop Diaz went on to state that now, as formerly, the church desires to find a settlement of existing difficulties on a basis of good will, that it desires neither martial intervention nor any imperialistic maneuver.

Where the Bishops Stand.
"Precisely what attitude does the Mexican hierarchy take toward the Mexican Government today?" the interviewer asked. "Is the church to insist upon its traditional status or does it suggest a compromise?"
"The position of the bishops," the Bishop replied, "remains precisely the same as the stand outlined in the memorial presented to the Mexican Legislature Sept. 6, 1926. At that time we said that in accordance with the right of petition guaranteed by Article VIII of the Constitution, and in response to a request from the President of the Republic, we demand in the name of the Catholic people of Mexico the abrogation of certain clauses in the Constitution and the reform of others. We were actuated, we said, by the patriotic desire to put an end to the existing religious conflict; to secure for Mexican Catholics their religious freedom; to purge the law of the land of unjust precepts, which, on the one hand, ignored the religious life of the country and on the other hand, clamped it into bonds essentially those of slavery; and to restore the dignity of civilization to our country."

"What were our demands in substance?" We asked neither tolerance nor complacent recognition—much less either prerogatives or favors. We demanded liberty; nothing more than liberty—not only for Catholics but for all faiths. On the fundamental of this liberty, we said, modern society had been established. For its sake many institutions have been dismantled and a torrent of blood has been shed. And what else could a policy of suppressing all religious beliefs be excepting the negation of this liberty?

Liberty of Education.
"More specifically we asserted that religious liberty implied liberty of education, without which liberty of thought and freedom of speech become a mere pretense; the liberty of association, which permits to those who are bound by religious vows full realization on this earth of the life of God; and life in community, which, as the sacred Scripture tells us, is nothing else than 'incentive to charity and good works.' We said further that there was a question of the liberty of worship, which guarantees an independent organization of the hierarchy and the papal authority, and we asserted that we asked for the right to settle wherever that was indispensable for the fulfillment of religious ends and the welfare of the church."

"What we protest against is the slavery to which the church has been subjected—which is nothing else than the deprivation of the Catholic's right to live according to his principles. We are certain, therefore, that we uphold a view sanctioned by thousands of years of human experience and accepted without hesitation by all civilized peoples who see what an immense benefit freedom and tranquility of conscience have conferred upon the world."

"Will you say that the Mexican church stands by this program as firmly as it did in 1926?"
"Unhesitatingly," the Bishop replied. "I may say that this view represents not only my own personal feeling but also the feeling of all Mexican bishops in whose name the memorial of September, 1926, was presented to the House of Representatives."
The Bishop then added that he had read with great pleasure a number of comments in our secular press which seemed to express the eagerness of our people to see the end of a persecution which has endangered the peace and civilization of a great people. He

REFUSES TO DROP CHARGES AGAINST U. S. IN OIL TRIAL

District of Columbia Judge Rules Allegations of Intimidating Jurors Are Part of Contempt Case.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—A motion to dismiss charges that the Government had intimidated witnesses in the Sinclair-Burns contempt proceedings, growing out of jury shadowing which caused a mistrial in the Fall-Sinclair conspiracy case, was denied today by Justice Siddons in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia. The intimidation charges had been brought against Assistant District Attorney James J. O'Leary, and District Attorney Gordon today asked that they be dismissed. In refusing to dismiss, Justice Siddons said the charges would be decided in connection with the main issue. The contempt hearing, which had been held since Dec. 29 to hear the charges against O'Leary, then was resumed.

A physical clash between Martin W. Littleton, counsel for Harry F. Sinclair, and O'Leary was averted only after heated verbal exchange over the absence from court of Sinclair, who had been excused from attendance at the contempt hearing.

"If the court doesn't protect me," asserted Littleton, walking up to the prosecutor, "I'll protect myself."

O'Leary took off his glasses and the court intervened.

The motion to dismiss the intimidation charges was overruled with permission for the District Attorney to renew it later. Justice Siddons said there was no doubt the intimidation charges were part of the contempt case. Gordon had argued that the case was separate and the court was without jurisdiction.

PLEA FOR UNITY OF DEMOCRATS AT JACKSON DINNER

Speakers Urge Return to Principles of Party's Founders and Equal Rights for Everyone.

REED ENCOURAGES
SPIRIT OF HARMONY

Puts Emphasis on Need of Tolerance for All, Regardless of Color or Creed, in Public Office.

By RAYMOND F. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—The Democratic party as a party began last night at the traditional Jackson day dinner. Thirteen hundred guests attended the love feast at which the spirit of harmony prevailed from the time John W. Davis, the 1924 standard bearer, rose as toastmaster and called for order until 2:30 o'clock this morning when Senator James A. Reed of Missouri concluded his address. Not a bombshell was thrown into the peaceful meeting although several speakers touched on highly controversial topics. Before and during the dinner it was rumored that William G. McAdoo would depart from his prepared speech and lay into Tammany Hall and the west. Instead he delivered a clever and humorous speech using Will Rogers as a foil. In his serious moments, however, he did not deviate from his recent announcements that there should be a full discussion of the issues.

Smith Present in Spirit.
Gov. Smith, McAdoo's rival four years ago, was unable to be present, but his letter to Chairman Charles Shaver, aided by the enthusiasm of his followers, caused his spirit to be felt throughout the entire meeting. In his letter Smith called upon his fellow-Democrats to meet every problem decisively and courageously and to let the country know where the party stood. Smith's letter was read by Lieutenant-Governor George H. Lunn of New York. When Lunn had finished there was a demonstration that equaled if it did not surpass the ovations given the other speakers.

The nearest approach to discord occurred when Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland called upon the party to take a stand on the prohibition problem. Ritchie had numerous followers in the audience who vigorously applauded him. "There are some men here," he said, "who are not willing to wait until the next speaker, pointed out that the American people were divided into three and not two camps on the prohibition issue."

Three Views on Prohibition.
"We are apt to think that the American public is divided into two camps—one composed of those in favor of conditions as they are, and another of those who are in the present policy of the Government," Davis said. "Still, another class is not sure that the success or lack of success of prohibition has yet been determined. Those of this class are willing to wait with an open mind, believing that the present policy is a serious effort to deal with an old problem. I am not so sure that this class is not greater numerically than the others."

The Davis rebuke, if it could be called a rebuke, found favor with the audience, which if applause in any criterion, was about evenly divided between the prohibitionists and anti-prohibitionists.

The spirit of harmony spreading from the banquet hall to the corridors and into the conference rooms carried optimism to the sections that must clash at Houston next June.

The Tammany representatives were exultant over the reception of the Smith letter. They were willing to accept McAdoo's humorous skit as an omen that the harmony of the dinner could be carried on into June. They even claimed that the selection of Houston as the convention city was a victory for their leader. This, however, was rather far-fetched. The Easterners really preferred San Francisco, but they had been astute enough to split their votes.

Reed to Lead Speakers.
Senator Harry B. Hawes, Sam Fordyce and Bennett Clark of Missouri, who are looked upon as the leaders of the Reed-for-President movement, were equally enthusiastic over the reception of the Smith letter. Reed, at his own request, was the last speaker. He began at 8 p. m. and finished half an hour later. At midnight, the audience began wondering if they were to hear the Missourian. After that hour, after each address, the Reed followers shouted, "Reed, Reed, we want Reed." Despite these efforts, Davis continued to call on

Not a bombshell was thrown into the peaceful meeting although several speakers touched on highly that William G. McDoom would depart from his prepared speech and lay into Tammany Hall and clever and humorous speech using W. H. Rogers as a foil. In his serious moments, however, he did not deviate from his recent announcements that there should be a full discussion of the issues.

Smith Present in Spirit.
Gov. Smith, McDoom's rival four ence who vigorously applauded him. They were, however, taken aback when the urbane Davis, before introducing the next speaker, pointed out that the American people were divided into three and

Three Views on Prohibition.
"We are apt to think that the American public is divided into two camps—one composed of those in favor of conditions as they are,
and another of those who oppose

The Davis retort, if it could be called a retort, found favor with the audience, which by applause and criticism, was about evenly divided between the prohibition-

Text of Gov. Smith's Letter
Read at Jackson Day Dinner

Executive Urges Early Drafting of Party Platform in Definite Terms for Progressive Action.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.— FOLLOWING is the text of the letter of Gov. Smith of New York to Chairman Clem Shaver of the Democratic National Committee, which was read at the Jackson day dinner here last night:

"My Dear Chairman: It is a matter of deep regret that the pressure of official business makes it impossible for me to leave the State. I should like to join with my fellow Democrats throughout the country in celebrating the birthday of Andrew Jackson. I take it that when a group of Democratic leaders from various parts of the country comes together, something must naturally be said of interest to the country and to the party."

"The Democratic party deserves success in the nation, but, in my opinion, cannot attain it by relying wholly upon the mistakes of its political enemies. It should inspire confidence by a constructive forward-looking platform with promises of material betterment for the nation. There should be no Western, no Eastern, no Northern, no Southern Democracy. Jeffersonian Democracy is built upon proposals sufficiently broad and liberal to enlist all men who believe in the principle of representative government. We must think nationally, and not locally."

Declare Party Principles.
"If I may be pardoned for a definite suggestion at this time, I venture to say that the declaration of party principles might well be tentatively drafted at the earliest possible moment. I believe we have erred in the past by waiting for the national convention to undertake the entire task of preparing a platform. In the heat and rush of a convention the platform when finally written is, to my way of thinking, not sufficiently understandable to the masses of the people."

"There is too great a tendency to speak of the evils that beset us and to fail to suggest any specific remedy.
"Party platforms of recent years have been too general in their terms and too important questions contained to the leaders and to the rank and file of the party as in the interest of the country and of the party of Jefferson and Jackson."

"Sincerely yours,
"ALFRED E. SMITH."

other speakers, and some of the guests left, convinced that Reed was discriminating against. This was not true. He said after the dinner that he had asked to be the last speaker, thinking the dinner would be over by midnight.

State leaders, who have favorite son candidates for the presidency and vice presidency, were also well pleased with the manifestations of harmony that coursed through the celebration. They were the only who really selected Houston as the convention city and they seemed certain that there could be no repetition of Madison Square Garden in the Texas city.

The Smith followers, as they had been nominated in this Southern city, his chances in the South would be materially improved.

The other mention was by Gov.
Dan Moody of Texas, who said the Republican party must be held responsible for failure to enforce the eighteenth amendment.

The speaker's view that the amendment could no more be repealed than could the Ten Commandments of the Golden Rule, and that the Democratic party should unite for law enforcement.

people in no uncertain terms.
"The national committee could render a great service to the party and to the country as well by the formulation far in advance of the national convention of a definite party policy on line, from which there can come during the course of the convention's deliberations, a platform upon which our candidates may present their cause to the country."

Suggestions for Platform.
"It is my deep conviction that our platform should be built by applying the fundamental principles of Jeffersonian democracy unflinchingly to each specific problem of the day.
"The greatest degree of local self-government by the states, the minimum of interference by the Federal Government in any state with the local habits and concerns of any other state, legislation for the interest of all, and not for any class or group, noninterference with the internal affairs of other nations, tolerance of conflicting opinions—these are our articles of political faith."

"When we follow these we succeed. We should follow them now.
"We should study and treat in the light of these principles our foreign relations, prohibition, agriculture, reform of the governmental machinery, economic policy, conservation and development of our public natural resources and in fact any other question which arises."

"We will solve these specific problems rightly only if we fearlessly meet them in full reliance upon these traditions of our party.
I, for one, am for this meeting them without equivocation." Cites New York Victories.
"The success of the Democratic party in the State of New York lies in the fact that it has had a clear-cut, definite platform, and from Long Island to Lake Erie the Democratic party stood as one man until the people of the State achieved the full benefit of the promises made at each of our Democratic State conventions."

"Indiscreet declarations of political faith get the party nowhere.
We have had sufficient experience along that line in the past, and as a lesson from that experience
I offer to the Democrats herein, contained to the leaders and to the rank and file of the party as
in the interest of the country and of the party of Jefferson and Jackson."

"Sincerely yours,
"ALFRED E. SMITH."

the best brains available and support them to the utmost.

Succed With Wisdom.
A call for a united front of democracy to turn the government back to the principles of Jefferson and Jackson was made by Senator Reed, who said in part:

"Our energies ought to be consolidated in the promulgation of those great doctrines of government upon which the Democratic party was founded," he added. "Let us remember that if every Democrat insists upon having his own way in all things, nobody will have his way in anything."

We shall succeed if we proceed in wisdom. We shall fail if we disregard the principles of natural justice. We shall equally fail if we subordinate grand fundamental questions of expediency or exhaust our energies in disputes about problems upon which our own party associates are far from in agreement.

"The sober thought of the nation is turning toward the old and sound principles which Jefferson so wisely laid down and which with unflinching fitness and superior courage Jackson maintained and defended. Those principles are as true today as they were when first proclaimed. Every departure has brought its brood of evils culminating in an era of corruption which has aroused the indignation and awakened the fears of all thoughtful men."

"It is the high duty of the Democratic party to meet the crisis and fulfill the hopes of the people."
"Liberty of conscience," he went on, "not in the narrow sense that a man may worship without punishment by the authorities, but in the broad implication that no man is to be subjected to any kind of punishment, obloquy or disgrace because of his faith."

Rising to the defense of "honest wealth," Senator Reed said the Democratic party and no other party could afford "to ever attack honest wealth honestly accumulated and honestly employed."

Indicates Governor's Strength Is Not So Great as Supposed.

By CURTIS A. BETTS.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—The selection yesterday by the Democratic National Committee of Houston, Tex., as the 1928 Democratic National convention city is interpreted by Democrats here, members of the committee and others, as an indication that the strength of Gov. Smith of New York for the presidency nomination is not nearly so great as generally supposed. The picking of Houston was brought about through a combination of anti-Smith committe-men and committeewomen from the South and supporters of various dark horse possibilities for the nomination. The convention will convene June 26.

On the taking of the first ballot, other competing cities having abandoned hope, it was clearly apparent that the fight was between Houston and San Francisco, with the representatives from the Southern city voting solidly for Houston and getting votes here and there in the North.

The official count on the fifth and final ballot was Houston 14, San Francisco 45, Detroit 1. On this ballot $3 were needed for a choice.

Solid South for Houston.
While it could not be described as a strictly Smith and anti-Smith fight, the fact was that New York and the other Eastern states which are Smith strongholds were voting for San Francisco, while the Southern and Middle West voted solidly for Houston. States like Missouri, having candidates who might be expected to have a chance if Smith could be prevented from obtaining the nomination on an early ballot, were voting for Smith in support for voting for Houston.

Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, committeewoman from Missouri, at-tough not a supporter of Reed for the nomination, but a supporter of Smith and cast her vote on all ballots for Houston. Senator Harry B.
Hawes, who had the proxy of William T. Kemper, committeeman from Missouri, voted for Detroit on the first two ballots and then switched to Houston. His attitude plainly was one of courting favor for Reed in the Southern states.

While probably the location of the convention has less significance than is thought generally in connection with the candidacy of any person seeking the nomination, the taking of the convention to a city in the South, where until recently the Ku Klux Klan was very strong, must be considered unfavorable to Smith, although of all Southern cities Houston probably is the least unfavorable.

Klan Weak in Texas.
According to reports the Klan now has very little strength in Texas, although only a few years ago it had huge membership.
There, the Klan of the past appealed to the committee to choose Houston, is credited with having destroyed the Klan influence in Texas.

The selection of Houston was a surprise for several reasons. It will be the first time for a convention to go to the Far South.
The most Southern cities chosen in the past having been St. Louis and Baltimore.

The committee in other years has not seriously considered a Southern city because of the intense heat which would hamper members of the committee in the South at the time of the convention. The convention, late in June and early in July,
the convention hall in Houston can accommodate only 5000 persons, having less than half the seating capacity usually considered necessary.

There were six competing cities, and as usual the financial bids entered prominently into the consideration. San Francisco had the highest bid, $250,000. Houston was second with an offer of $200,- 000. The others were Cleveland $150,000, Chicago $130,000, Detroit $125,000 and Miami $100,000.

Distance Object of To.
While the San Francisco bid was very attractive and might have been expected to win if there had been no other offer close to it, the difference of only $50,000 was not great enough to overcome the objections of some of the committeemen and committeewomen that the distance of San Francisco from the more thickly populated sec-

DESERTS GOVERNMENT

Break Follows Imprisonment of Two Communist Deputies.

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, Jan. 13.—The Communist Deputies, Marcel Cachin and Paul Vaillant-Couturier, were arrested last evening on orders of the Government, as they were leaving the Chamber of Deputies.
The two had been convicted with three others of distributing propaganda to provoke disobedience among the French soldiers and sailors and had been sentenced to prison. Cachin had served part of his term when the chamber met after the summer vacation and the house voted that he be released to take part in the deliberation of the Chamber.

The Communist leader disappeared after the adjournment for the holidays, instead of reporting to the police.
The stand of the Communists caused much annoyance to government circles and a showdown on the question came on a resolution proposed by the Socialists. Communists and radicals declaring the deputies were free during the legislative session. The Government opposed this and announced it would make the matter a question of confidence.

CATHOLICS APPROVE ORDER
AGAINST MARINES MARRYING

Bishop of Granada Tells Priests that Ruling is Protection for Nicaraguan Girls.

By the Associated Press.
MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 13.—
The order against the marriage of United States Marines and Nicaraguan girls has the approval of the Roman Catholic church. Bishop of Granada, Jose of the Diocese of Granada has issued the following circular under date of Dec. 31:
"The American commander has requested this ecclesiastical authority to order priests not to celebrate marriages between Nicaraguan girls and members of the American Marine Detachment, since these latter do not have a fixed residence and the girls run the risk of being abandoned by their husbands, when, on account of a sudden order, they have to leave the place."

"Moreover, the American Marines do not have the right to dispose of sufficient money for the maintenance of a decent home."

"The reasons on which the request of the American commander are based are considered to be very just, consequently priests shall not perform the above indicated marriages. In order that no one shall be deceived through ignorance, you shall advise the members of the church by publishing our decision and explaining it."

FLOOD DESTROYS CITY IN BRAZIL, 5000 HOMELESS

More Than 1000 Homes Swept Away at Diamantina by Torrent of Mountain Streams.

By the Associated Press.
RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 13.—The city of Diamantina has been wiped out by floods, and 5000 people are homeless. Diamantina, which is in the State of Minas Geraes, is the center of the diamond industry in Brazil.

More than 1000 houses are declared to have been destroyed by the rushing waters of the mountain streams. Five thousand persons were estimated to have been made homeless. They are suffering from lack of food and medical attention.

ROME, Jan. 13.—Although there are no Catholic missions in Afghanistan, Pope Pius yesterday received in private audience Amir Amanullah of that country, the ninth head of a state to pay homage to the present pontiff since his election.
In the Amir's honor the Swiss Guards were drawn up to greet him and the band played the Afghan and Papal anthems. After passing through several halls, Amanullah reached the throne room, where Pius was waiting for him.

After shaking hands the Pontiff requested Amanullah to sit near him and they spoke together through an interpreter for 20 minutes. Before retiring the Amir was presented to the papal suite and visited Secretary of State Cardinal Gasparrri. His Holiness decorated Amanullah with the Order of the Golden Spur, the same as given King Fuad of Egypt and a miniature portrait of the Pope.

In the afternoon Cardinal Gas-parrri returned the Amir's visit.
Later Amanullah returned incorporated to the Vatican to visit the picture gallery and the basilica of St. Peter's.

HOUSE DEBATES
TARIFF REVISION

Representative Dickinson of Iowa Announces Bill to Raise Agricultural Import Duties.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—The tariff argument spread to the House today, when Representative Dickinson (Rep.), Iowa, one of the farm leaders, announced that a determined move to force consideration of the question, with a view to obtaining an upward readjustment of import schedules on agricultural products would be initiated.

When the Senate debated the resolution by McMaster (Rep.), South Dakota, for downward revision in favor of the farmer, Dickinson informed the House he was drafting a bill proposing increased import duties on corn, hides and vegetable oils and that other products would be included as soon as he received from the Tariff Commission a report for which he had asked several days ago.

He said he thought he would have the support of the whole House farm bloc. Representative Dickinson, Democratic leader of the House Ways and Means Committee, which would have jurisdiction over the Dickinson measure, predicted that the minority would vote to send the bill to the House floor.

The combination of these two groups would virtually make it certain that the bill would go before the House. If it opposed, by House Republican leaders.

Garner emphasized that in voting to place the bill before the House the Democrats would not commit themselves to its support beyond that point. He said he felt a consideration of the tariff question would be beneficial at present and personally would use every effort to carry the measure to the House floor.

The administration forces took up the fight in the Senate today.
Senator Fess (Rep.), Ohio, excoriating what he called the "spotted protectionists" in the Democratic ranks.

"By what theory?" he asked,
"do some Democrats ask protection for articles produced in their states and oppose protection for articles produced in other states which come in competition with foreign goods?"

At the request of Senator Copland (Dem.), New York, McMaster modified his resolution so as to make it call for downward revision only of "excessive schedules."
The Senate agreed to vote at 3
p. m. Monday on the McMaster resolution.

WITH COLLOQUIES

Court's Order for Prosecu-

timidation Charge Made by Kidwell Causes Tangle

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-
Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Mutterings of an approaching storm are heard daily on Capitol Hill, as the contempt case against Harry F. Sinclair, William J. Burns and his associates, charged with jury tampering, drugs into the sixth week with no indication that it will get anywhere soon.

Through the astute maneuvering of defense counsel and certain puzzling rulings by Justice Frederick L. Siddons, the case became involved in such an incredible tangle that the District Attorney's office, instead of conducting the prosecution, found itself on trial and the defendants acting as prosecutors. It is one of the most extraordinary inversions ever heard of.

Senators Resent Delay.
Resentment over the proceedings has reached such a stage in the Senate that an explosion may be expected any day. Several Senators have declared privately that they expect to deliver their opinions about it on the floor of the Senate, and others are discussing even more drastic measures. Dissatisfaction is particularly pronounced among those members of Congress who are lawyers.

The trial opened Dec. 8. It proceeded slowly but steadily, with the District Attorney questioning Burns' detectives about their activity in "shadowing" jurors in the Hall-Sinclair conspiracy case. The proceedings were delayed by frequent and lengthy objections on the part of the seven lawyers retained by the defense. However, it went ahead until Dec. 26. On that day George Hoover, one of Sinclair's lawyers, arose and formally charged that Assistant District Attorney James O'Leary had intimidated Edward J. Kidwell. The judges, whose talkativeness mutates the courtroom had been one of the factors responsible for a mistrial in the Hall-Sinclair case.

Judge Orders Sid Inquiry.
Declaring that "this is a serious matter, which must be cleared up at once," Justice Siddons promptly interrupted the trial of the contempt case, and commanded the District Attorney's office to "purge itself of the accusation" before proceeding with the original case.
In vain O'Leary protested that if he had been guilty of any offense there was a proper time and place to try him.

In vain he entreated the Judge to proceed with the case on trial.
Justice Siddons declared the "purging" must be done at once.
Thereupon, O'Leary and District Attorney Gordon called Kidwell to the stand and asked him to plain-k what he had been intimidated, and if so when, how, and by whom? Sinclair's counsel objected, and to the astonishment of the prosecution, Justice Sid-

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress or reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight democracy and always support the rights of the individual. It will never be a party paper, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

A Holdup in the County.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE POST-DISPATCH:
A RESIDENT of Oklahoma, Ok., was driving through the county at a rate between 25 and 40 miles an hour. Hearing an admission to stop, he applied the brakes and up drove three men in a machine. Two of them got out of their car and approached the Oklahoma man with "What do you mean by driving so fast?" The men flashed their badges—apparently they were deputy sheriffs—and told the visitor he would have to submit to arrest and be bound over for trial the next day. However, the Oklahoma man was anxious to return home and could not risk a delay of 24 hours. His wife asked the deputies if there were not a way in which "things could be fixed up." Expressing surprise at first, the deputies finally declared they would "have to speak with the big boss," the third man in their car.

After a few minutes' consultation, they returned with the word that they would "fix things up" for $10. The Oklahoma man paid the stated amount and continued on his way without further molestation.

Either there are bogus enforcement officers preying on the motoring public in St. Louis County or the constituted officers are violating their trust by accepting bribes. At any rate—something is rotten somewhere. A ST. LOUISAN.

Hyde's 10 Per Cent Reduction.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE POST-DISPATCH:
We cannot blame Missouri for rejoicing in the decision of the Supreme Court upholding Commissioner Hyde's 10 per cent reduction in rates, but don't worry about the poor companies being compelled to pay back millions to policy holders. The insurance companies attended to that by raising all rates in Illinois about a year ago. The Illinois people should have had a Hyde also and prevented this increase. And now we will make up the deficit caused by the late decision. P. L. J.

"Lindbergh Light."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE POST-DISPATCH:
I HAVE lately noticed several articles advocating a beacon at Lambert Field as a memorial in honor of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's achievements as an aviator, and it seems to me nothing could be more appropriate. It could be made an enduring ornament to the field, and serve a useful purpose for all time as a guide for airmen. The public would not doubt take to this proposition more readily than has been the case with other plans of this kind. Let this beacon tower hundreds of feet in the air, and call it "Lindbergh Light," a name to thrill the heart and grip the imagination. In the coming years it would be a landmark, and an object of interest for travelers from all over the world. Where could a more appropriate location be found than Lambert Field, where the "Spirit of St. Louis" and its historic flight across the sea had its inception? WM. GRANTLAND.

A Dissatisfied Property Owner.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE POST-DISPATCH:
MR. MORELAND states he is the owner of a five-room cottage which he thinks he could sell any time for from $3750 to $4000, and further states his taxes are less than $100, while he considers reasonable.

I am the owner of a modern five-room efficiency bungalow and have tried for more than a year to sell and have not even received a bid. In the meantime my property depreciates and my taxes increase yearly and so rapidly that in a period of three years they have doubled.

Mr. Moreland might be dissatisfied if he compared his taxes with those paid by many of the owners of expensive homes. I do not mind paying any reasonable tax. I do believe in equalization, but how can this be brought about?

A TAXPAYER.

Straphanger Wants More Light.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE POST-DISPATCH:
THE St. Louis Public Service Co. is endeavoring to render better service to the public. One thing it might do is to equip their cars with the new type of lamp. The old ones now in use are antiquated.

Another suggestion for the new company is to instruct motormen to "Y" back on their line at certain places when there is a blockade of three to six cars. The idea of sending all of the blocked cars to the end of the line is just a piece of red-tape that may work well on their schedules but prevents the public from securing adequate service.

DAILY PATRON.

WALL STREET AND NICARAGUA.

It has been our opinion throughout the Nicaragua controversy that differences of opinion among us should relate only to the wisdom of what we are doing down there and not to the reasons why we are doing it. That is, there is exposed in Nicaragua the inevitable consequence of what we know as dollar diplomacy. Our financial interests, with the sanction of the State Department, make loans in the Caribbean region and sometimes require the services of the Marines to safeguard these loans.

We have been unable to convince the Globe-Democrat that this is true at the moment or has been true for some years in the case of Nicaragua. So material a fact ought not to be in dispute, but notwithstanding we have given the particulars of a million-dollar loan made to the country as recently as March 31st last by J. & W. Seligman and the Guarantee Trust Company, the Globe-Democrat denied Tuesday of this week in the most formal manner that this is the case and said:

It happens, however, that Wall Street is not concerned in Nicaragua. . . . In a special message to Congress last January President Coolidge said: "The bonds held in the United States are held by the public in general, and so far as the State Department knows, no American bankers are directly interested in the Nicaraguan indebtedness." And no loans have been made to Nicaragua since he made this statement. The World Almanac for 1928, published by the New York World, contains a full list of all the loans made by American banking interests to foreign governments, state and city, and to foreign corporations, during 1927, but none of any sort to Nicaragua are listed.

It additionally said in the same editorial that what we have been saying, that is what we have ascertained to be the fact, "is one of the most popular charges against the American Government in its relation to Nicaragua," that all such transactions, though precisely as we have described them, "were transactions of the past," and that "American bankers have no connection with the present use of Marines in Nicaragua, which began in November, 1926."

We therefore felt it necessary to secure confirmation of the loan beyond the public announcements made at the time. We did not, however, look for this sort of thing in almanacs, however good they may be. In response to our inquiry the Nicaragua legation at Washington confirmed yesterday the facts of the loan as originally stated by the Post-Dispatch.

We have no wish to continue the debate with the Globe-Democrat. There is no debate. It is a fact, and we have proved it. We submit it as proof that our financial interests do influence our policy in the Caribbean. To say they do not is to quibble.

WHOM?

Lest Secretary Wilbur did not make himself perfectly clear the day before in his presentation of the big navy program to the House committee, Representative Vinson asked him yesterday:

Then your position as Secretary of the Navy is that we have not a first-class navy?

Yes, replied Wilbur.

Thus Secretary Wilbur's attitude is stripped of all nuances, its maybes and perhapses. He is definitely arrayed against the President of the United States, who told us a month ago that no navy in the world, with one exception approaches ours and none surpasses it. While the President claims we are not neglecting national defense, Secretary Wilbur says Congress must spend $725,000,000 of the taxpayers' money to make the navy adequate.

Whom is Congress to believe, Mr. Coolidge or Secretary Wilbur?

THE COMMON COLD.

News of major interest to snuffling, sneezing mankind is the establishment of the John J. Abel fund at Johns Hopkins for research into the "origin, nature and possible cure of the common cold." The Abel gift amounts to $195,000. Dr. Carroll Gileson, Bull of Johns Hopkins undertook the study of the common cold some time ago and this fund will be of great help in continuing the work.

Perhaps no ailment the flesh is heir to has induced more "cures" than the cold. These vary from the vile concoctions of the "yarb" doctors to the 50 varieties of "cure your cold in 24 hours or get your money back" that may be found in any drug store. The list includes strange and fanciful recipes handed down from father to son, more likely from mother to son, mustard plasters, things to sniff, things to swallow, things to spread on the skin. Whisky, the form of hot toddy has been an immortal cold "cure." Lately poison gas has been tried with little effect, and some optimists have invented serums which are supposed to work.

As a matter of fact, the doctors are in total darkness as to the cause of the common cold. Long ago they spotted the tubercle bacillus and other infinitesimal polliwogs which harass the human race, but in their sorties through the jungles of the invisible world of microbes they have never been able even to find the spoor of the cold bug, if any. It is impossible to say, therefore, that any one of a thousand manners of treating a cold is the correct one.

We believe, however, that it is consistent with the last-minute therapeutic knowledge to surmise that only one agency is ever responsible for curing a common cold—and that is Mother Nature who moves in an inscrutable way her wonders to perform.

A TACTICAL BLUNDER.

The words of Gov. Smith of New York in his recent message to the Legislature about the "sacred duty" of a state to uphold the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act have come home to plague him. Inevitably, what he said has been put down as a cheap and hypocritical bid for the ballots of Democratic drys.

The first tip to this interpretation upon it was not, however, a friend of prohibition, but one of its opponents, namely, the New York World. Such talk as that of the Governor about prohibition, said the World, will, if persisted in, "shake the confidence of sincere men whether wet or dry." It is questionable, in fact, whether this unfortunate result has not already taken place. Throughout the arid regions of the South, Gov. Smith is being castigated as every variety of pussyfoot and dodger. Papers which formerly respected his courageous stand on the prohibition issue have begun shelling him with railleury and abuse.

In other words, Gov. Smith has committed a serious tactical blunder. No matter how excellent appeared the source of the advice which led to the unprecedented words in the message, the advice was palpably dangerous, and he should disregard it from now on. His personal attitude toward prohibition is too well known to be disguised, and every dry in the nation knows that his official conduct as chief executive of New York has not been that of a believer in prohibition. His unexpected observations have obviously failed to deceive the drys. If they were continued, they might conceivably alienate the wets.

THE DEMOCRATS GO TO HOUSTON.

The Democrats will hold their national convention in Houston, Tex. That's a long way from Broadway, but, recalling vaguely as we do what happened in New York four years ago, we don't blame the Democrats for shoving Babylon behind them about as far as our geography will permit. Of course, they could have gone farther than Houston. San Francisco was beckoning, but they had tried that city and though they had found its Viennese temperament charming they remembered that there was no political amulet among its possessions.

There will be speculation, of course, as to whether this selection of a Southern city will influence the convention's choice of a candidate. Right now it is Al Smith against the field, with the field all but lost in the dim, straggling distance. Yet for Smith the South is the "enemy's country." There, if anywhere, he can be beaten.

Did that thought agitate some of the committee-men? Was there practical political method in their madness? Perhaps, perhaps, also, others of them, looking longer ahead, may have reasoned thus: If Al Smith is nominated for President in Houston, Tex., the blessings of the South will be on his head, his availability will have been morally and factually certified, and the bolt below Mason and Dixon's which the Republicans have been fondly imagining, will be an iridescent dud.

All this aside, it is high time the South were given this party recognition. And, of course, there is no such other State anywhere on the map—North, South, East or West—as Texas. Territorially, it is a continent, resourcefully an Empire, and the stars in their courses proclaim its dynastic destiny. And Houston is a city of millionaires and magnolias, and beauty and beauties.

The Democrats should have a happy family reunion in Houston.

A COMIC-STRIP MERIT SYSTEM.

It is worthy of the eminent George Bungle or Rube Goldberg of comic-strip celebrity. We are referring to the merit system for employing teachers in our public schools and the creaking, complicated, expensive machinery by which it functions, as described by a correspondent in Letters From the People. If the description is accurate, or approximately so, the people of St. Louis have a lousy kick coming. If Mr. Maddox is the inventor or sponsor of such a preposterous mechanism he is not the man for the office of Superintendent. If members of the Board of Education are responsible in any degree for its installation they, too, should retire.

Our correspondent, however, is in error on one point. He says the Board of Education "has at no time questioned this principle" of selecting teachers solely on the basis of merit. It is a matter of recent record that members of the Board of Education beligerently questioned that principle. They insisted on home talent. They demanded that applicants for teaching positions be residents of St. Louis. They pressed the issue with such force and strength that they came within one vote of winning.

Our correspondent's mistake in this important point inevitably raises some question as to the reliability of his letter as a whole. Still the particularity with which this Golbergian or Bungleonesque contrivance is presented is somehow convincing. At any rate it is up to Mr. Maddox and the Board of Education to defend themselves.

THOMAS HARDY.

Though Thomas Hardy's genius budded and flowered in the Victorian Age it was never blighted by the stuffy air of Victorianism. Lovely Tess dancing on the village green has nothing to do with an upholstered and brocaded grande dame set in a rococo London drawing room. For his whole lifetime Hardy lived, moved and had his being in that tiny, forlorn corner of the earth known as Wessex heath. He did for it what Kipling did for India, only not in clanging rhythms, but with the completeness and understanding of universal art.

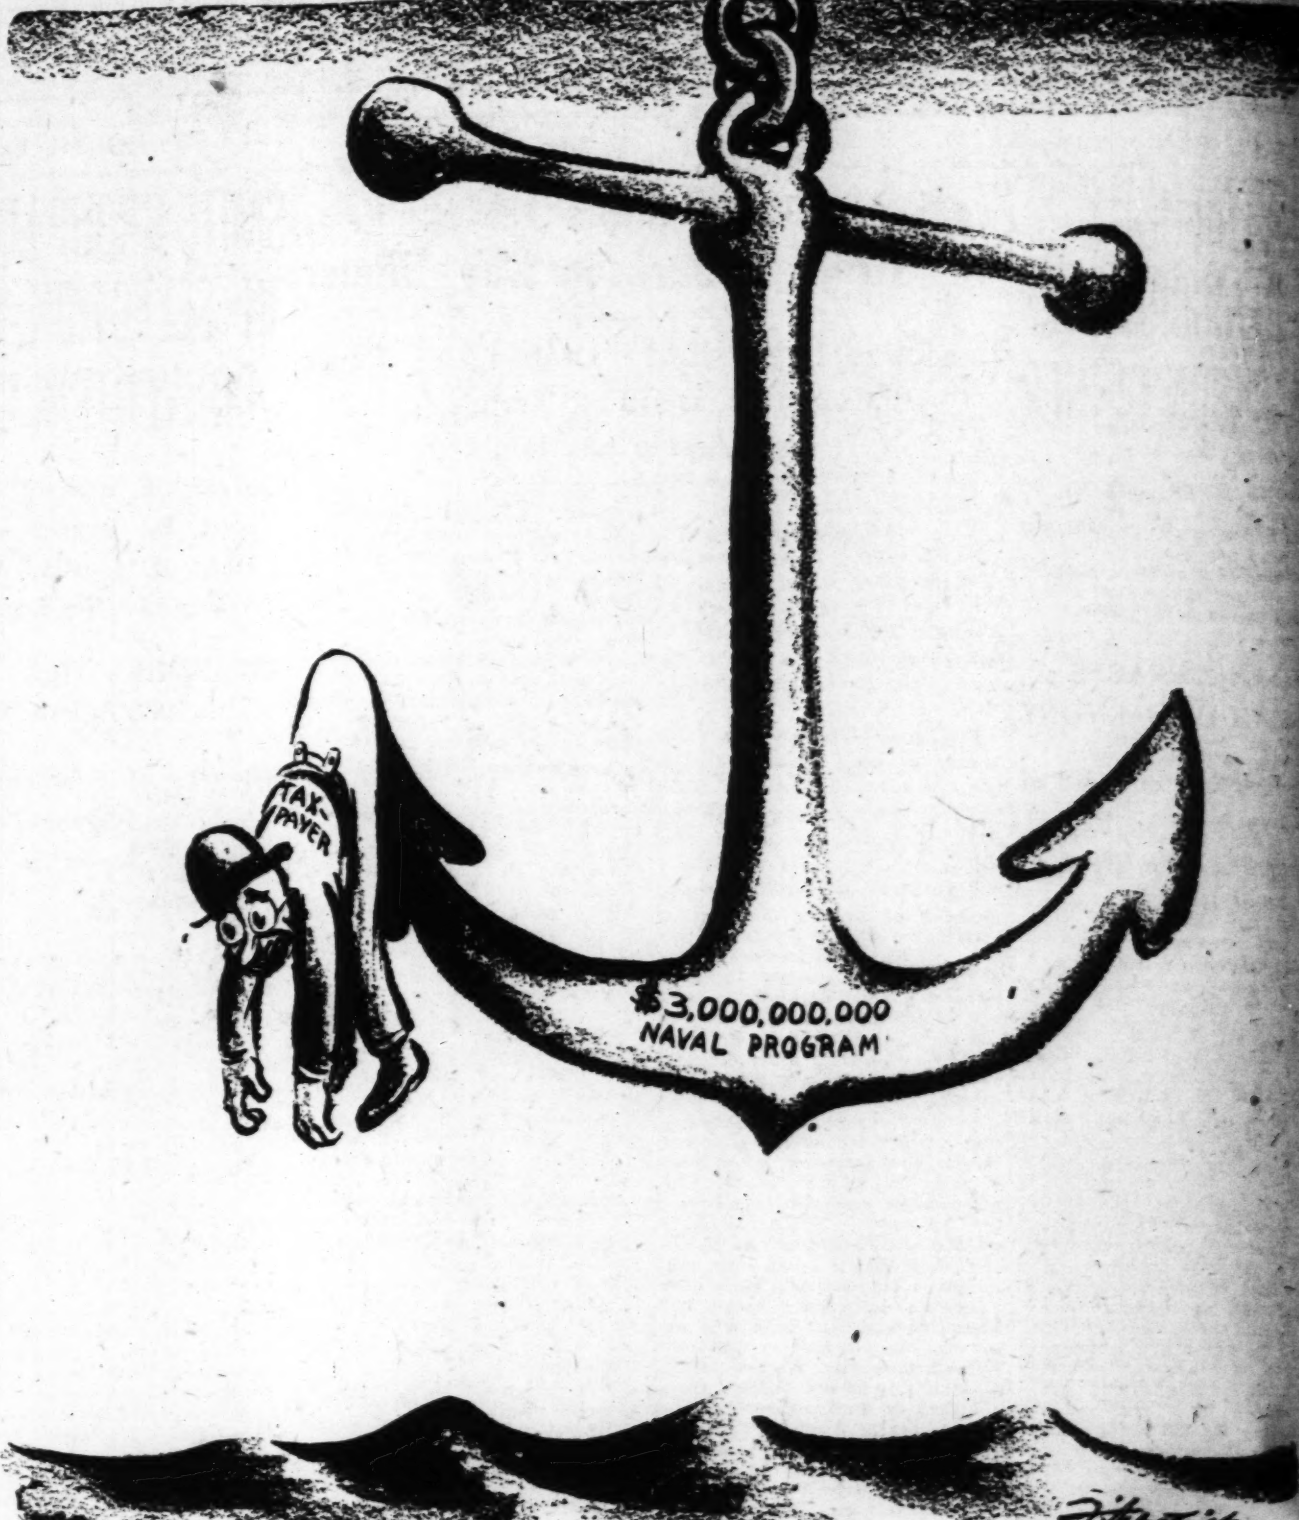

Some say Hardy is gloomy, but that is because he is like the heath in which he was so deeply rooted. His pessimism is not the morbid kind of his friend, Schopenhauer, but partakes of the fatalistic grandeur of the ancient Greeks, in whose thought he was steeped. There are passages in his novels where his characters are shown enmeshed in the toils of inscrutable fate that reach Aeschylean heights. Hardy's gloom, if that is the word, is that of a man who looks sanely and realistically upon the struggles and sorrows of mankind. It is not untempered with humor and deep human sympathy. Only semi-accurately may one speak of his works as "an austere descent upon the dust and ashes of things, the cruelty of lust, the fragility of love."

Of Hardy's prose, what could be added to Stevenson's tribute? Himself one of the most perfect stylists in the language, Stevenson said: "I would give my right hand to write like Hardy." Hardy had a magnificent gift for description. The first part of "The Return of the Native" contains some of the most powerful descriptive passages in literature. By and large, Hardy might be described as at war with unhappiness. But he was not a reformer like Galsworthy; he was not beset with the messianic complex; he was not cabin'd, cribb'd and confined with formulae. Looking upon life, he simply told what he saw and felt and imagined with the deep insight of the true artist. In his hands, the folk on Wessex heath became a microcosm of the human race. His death at 58 seems unreal. He is already semi-legendary.

We note that the erroneous assumption that a flexible tariff can be revised downward is spreading in the United States Senate.

THE PROTEAN ERSKINE.

First we thought John Erskine was a teacher of English literature at Columbia University. Then we discovered he was the historian of her whose face launched a thousand ships. (And, by the way, the poet who said Helen's lips are drifting dust is all wrong. The old girl's spouting Erskinian epigrams.) Also, that Erskine is the author of a story about Galahad and another in which he psychoanalyzes Mother Eve. Now comes the news that Erskine has signed up as pianist with the New York Symphony Orchestra. Teacher, author, pianist. That can't be all the same person. It must be Lon Chaney.

"HELP!"

Why America Isn't Socialist

RENE JOHANNET in L'Echo de Paris

(Reprinted from The Living Age.)

SOCIALISM is unquestionably the most significant political phenomenon of our time. It is completely upsetting our ideas of parliamentary government, and radically modifying for good or ill all our conceptions of life. For obvious reasons, we usually associate that doctrine with the industrial revolution. Its recruits come largely from the employees of the great mechanized branches of production that have appeared within the last 100 years. Some correlation between the two developments is evident. Assuming that relation to be what Europe commonly assumes, however, Socialism must inevitably eventuate in absolute communism. Quite naturally, bourgeois defeatists are deeply cast down by this prospect.

But social evolution never follows the route that we prescribe for it in advance. Its laws are infinitely too complex for their effects to be forecast. Nature has a thousand surprises in her box of secrets, and her ingenuity invariably exceeds our expectation. Without doubt, certain connections between socialism, communism and big industry do exist. But the more we study the facts the less sure we are as to where those connections lead. We see, for example, the Scandinavian countries, although highly industrialized, evolving a material civilization where socialism does not have the last word. We observe Italy giving birth to the Fascist movement at Milan, the most highly industrialized city of the peninsula.

Finally, of all the countries in the world, the United States is, in the strict definition of the word, the most highly industrialized and the least socialist. The intenser its industrial development the more bourgeois it becomes. This seems to us incredible, but it is true. If we knew the industrial revolution only from the example of the United States, we should draw precisely the opposite conclusion regarding its relation with socialism from that which we have drawn from the history of England, Germany, Belgium and France. We should conclude that industrial progress and the rise of a bourgeoisie go hand in hand. Proponents of that theory might turn to modern Russia to clinch their argument by the law of contraries. For the only country where a communist government has survived long enough to make an impression is the least industrialized region of any.

In fact, society is not a mere product of circumstances, though these, of course, help to form it. Human will and national character play their part. The United States is immune to socialism or communism partly because of the character of its people, and partly because its physical environment forbids. Since Taine the theory that environment absolutely determines national character has lost much ground. Nevertheless, it is unquestionably a powerful influence. Montesquieu had dwelt upon its effect long before Taine adopted the idea.

The entrenchment of the dollar in a nation without ancient traditions, without an aristocracy, without an intellectual caste—indeed, where intellect is less revered than it was in the time of Emerson, Thoreau, Poe and Hawthorne—has this significant effect—that faith, and above all great fortunes, do not arouse the sordid envy which so largely motivates European socialism. Consequently the United States has never resorted to that fiscal demagogism which levies taxes primarily to take away the possessions of the fortunate, instead of to meet the legitimate expenses of the state. Cherishing no dread of expropriation, its millionaires have not feared to call attention to their wealth. They have been able to give free rein to the natural ambition of every man to play a prominent part in civic life. They have, therefore, inspired by the public, benefactors, devoting a large part of their wealth to founding museums, universities and libraries, and to other community objects.

BUT it is not only the millionaires in America who are steadily growing richer. The sanctity of private property begets an accumulation complex among all classes of the people. As a result savings increase and the number of investors multiplies beyond precedent. Between 1913 and 1926 the owners of stocks and bonds of public and private corporations in America multiplied tenfold.

What is communism essentially? Misdirected craving for wealth. Its proselytes seek some quick and easy way to better themselves materially at the expense of others. The doctrine appeals most strongly to the weak and shiftless, who lack courage and initiative to fight the battle of life alone, and therefore run in packs, or take the cover of the state. But natural selection and training have given Americans the opposite mentality. They are descended from the more aggressive elements of Europe. Their ancestors were not men of the herd, but men of initiative and decision, who sought new lands and freely faced hardships to find wider scope for their natural energies. Appeals to the state and the call of the revolutionary mob were equally offensive to their ears. They relied on their own strength. America's social vices are not of the communist order, but of a predatory and piratical kind. They are the vices of men who push ahead unscrupulously to their objective by the shortest possible route.

AMERICAN psychology, which is practical rather than theoretical, naturally directs the workman's efforts at social betterment into this channel (investment in industry). The public schools, the press and other sources of social influence, tend to this tendency. The worker spends little time dreaming about a millennium; he wants immediate and concrete results. This same spirit makes so many wage-earners installment buyers. Incidentally, the man who is buying on installments is not a ready striker. High wages, through their correlative, a high standard of living, are tremendous incentives to assiduous labor.

We should not forget, in this connection, that no country more vigorously suppresses anarchism or communist agitation than the United States. In fact, the Americans adopted the strong-arm tactics later associated with Fascism before the world ever heard of Mussolini.

Many of the conditions unfavorable to socialism and communism in America are due to the peculiar situation of the United States; they do not exist in Europe. Some of them will not last indefinitely even across the Atlantic. But the respect for property, the encouragement of thrift, and the spirit of self-help which underlie the American attitude toward all social theories are fundamental, and promise to endure.

ECONOMICAL SUGGESTION.

EVERY NOW AND THEN some one makes a gloomy prediction. Our season for calamity howlers is from Aug. 1 to Sept. 1. However, we need attend to all of them in that short time. Besides, people might have forgotten the matter. Hence, we have resolved to attend to each new calamity as it is born. The latest is a shortage of paper. Paper, it appears, is made from rags and dress is such that old clothes simply rot, and we cannot say much more about new clothes. No old clothes; no rags; no paper. Logical and terrible. What we reduce the number of loaves' was committed to paper? Never! Would we be away with bridge score pads? Perhaps the drawing cabalistic designs while waiting for the most faithful kept budget funds broke at the end of the last column. What good are they, now that a paper shortage impends?

How, we sometimes wonder, are the Balkan movie makers pressed to distinguish them from Generals?

What the Well-Dressed Man Will Wear—appeared in his newly affected beard and customary court attitude of polite indifference.—News Item.

We do not doubt that some people maintain an avid interest in channel swimming and the Weather Bureau is still talking about the kind of weather we had in the summer of 1927.

What nettles us, more or less, is that they did not even wait to find out the brand of cigarettes that English lecturer smoked.

Sure, most people are honest but perhaps it is just as well that the Pullman company does count the towels occasionally.

One invaluable service of Mr. Mallon's was indirectly to allow us to be let in on the information that there used to be a St. Alexander Hamilton.

From a casual survey of the political situation, we incline to believe that the 90th issue next year will be the statements.

Our only objection is that, even if the menu assures us it is a legume, the still continues to taste like spinach.

Discusses Democracy

DEMOCRATIC DISTINCTION IN AMERICA. By W. C. Brownell.

SOME years ago the late Albion W. Small contributed a series of papers to the American Journal of Sociology under the title "Materials for the Idea of Democracy." The title itself was a notable contribution; for, although the term democracy is used casually by all of us, it can hardly be said that there is always one idea behind the term.

Dr. Small's title suggested, what appears to be true, that even the materials out of which a definite idea of democracy might be constructed were in need of construction. It seems that they still are; for surely the term is used with a wide range of meaning. To many a word probably means little more than an expansive feeling in the chest, such as we experience when the flag goes up and the band plays "The Star Spangled Banner." It's a fine feeling, in spite of what contemporary cynics have to say about patriotism. To some, the term seems to mean individualism—while others maintain that democracy and individualism are direct opposites. (There are reasons for believing this may be true.) More often than not, the term seems to have a hazy connotation concerned with the encouraging assumption that "I'm as good as you are." To this perhaps, many would add with Deoley, "—and a d— night better." Naive literalists still believe that the etymological significance of the word is to be taken seriously.

It is not exactly clear what Mr. Brownell means by democracy in his discussion of democratic distinction in America. At least, he ventures to suggest no definition in so many words. Out of the whole book the reader gathers that he is discussing whatever it is that we have in America—rather a general social mood than a philosophical social conception—a mood in which the opposite of snobbery is central. Perhaps the careful reader might be able to read into Mr. Brownell's book some such definition as the following: An ideal democratic society would be one in a state of well-ordered fluidity, lacking arbitrary barriers to check the upward or downward flow of ability or incompetence.

There is a moment, early in the book, when the reader may suspect that the implied definition, whatever it is, may be badly marred with sentimentalism. It is when Mr. Brownell makes the remark that "Whitman is more popular, or at least more promulgated, than ever, supplying in the view of many of us the place of a national poet, like Goethe or Hugo." But surely the Democracy preached by Whitman would be utterly unintelligible to the vast mass of head-to-toe good Americans. It is the sophisticated who are making all the noise about Whitman—the

WINS "BEST BOOK" CONTEST

Mrs. Alice Ames Winter wrote "The Heritage of Women." WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Mrs. Alice Ames Winter of Minneapolis today was adjudged winner of the National League of American Penwomen's national "best book" contest. Mrs. Winter's book, "The Heritage of Women," won first place among those submitted. The book tells of some of the notable women of the world who have contributed to the advancement of their times.

First honorable mention went to Anna S. Lee of New York for "When Rome Begins," and second to Mary Bennett for her "Garland of Defeat." Miss Bennett is a member of the league in Washington State. Ruth Langland Holberg of New York won the national poetry prize for her poem, "My House in the Forest." Mrs. Winter's book, "The Heritage of Women," was first published in 1927.

Film Actress.

Miss Patty Louise Brucher, daughter of Mrs. Anna S. Brucher, 2611 Lindell boulevard, was married to Melvin Hagenfritz of Houston, Tex., the father of Mrs. Larry Simon, known to movie fans as Dorothy Dwan, on Dec. 30, at the Brucher home. It was announced today.

Mrs. Hagenfritz, who is 39 years old, is a daughter of the late George C. Brucher, a jeweler. She met her husband a number of years ago while visiting at Sedalia, Mo., where the Brucher family lived until the death of the first Mrs. Hagenfritz. Mr. and Mrs. Hagenfritz will reside at Houston, where he is in the oil business.

Funeral of Frank A. Kinkel. Frank A. Kinkel, 57 years old, 2110A Accomac street, who died Wednesday of chronic neuritis, will be buried at Valhalla Cemetery tomorrow afternoon. The funeral service will be from 2225 South Jefferson avenue at 2 o'clock. Mr. Kinkel, a retired farmer and horse breeder, is survived by two sons and three daughters.

Meeting of Reserve Officers. Large groups of U. S. Reserve officers will meet in the St. Louis University medical school building Monday night at 8 o'clock for lectures and social evening. The building has been placed at their disposal by the Rev. Alphonse Schwallia, S. J., dean.

Modern is such that old clothes simply are and we cannot say much more for clothes. No old clothes; no rags. No paper. Logical and terrible. Would the number of lovers' vows compare to paper? Never! Would we do with bridge score pads? Perish the thought! Must we prevent people from making designs while waiting for long telephone numbers? No! As seen pointed out in this column of influence, the diary seldom lasts a whole year. The family budget is often when the housewife knows she has all, but forgets exactly where. If they are interested in conserving paper, let them launch an attack on dimes and dimes. Even if the diary is faithfully, what good is it, except when it is a dull affair at not worth looking back upon? And most faithfully kept budget finds us at the end of the last column. What are they, now that a paper shortage is?

sort of people who are as far as possible from the double-fisted, hipster camerader for whom Whitman professed so great a fondness. Can anyone believe that our professional sophisticates are democratic in any conceivable sense?

As to our "democratic distinction," Mr. Brownell seems to be concerned more with hopeful possibilities than with actualities. He says: "It is possible, of course, that we shall collectively fail of distinction, not because it is attainable only by the few, but because it is antipathetic to the many." And he adds: "If distinction cannot be made a conjoint and universal ideal, it had better be reposed."

In other words, if we cannot all, as a mass, be raised, it is better that no one should rise above the common level. That is a state already achieved by the common housewife. But history seems to show that the general level of humanity has been raised only through the emergence of exceptions—that is to say, through some form of genuine aristocracy. And if we were not now so thoroughly obsessed with the individualistic, competitive idea, we might be able to see that what democracy needs, to be successful, is a better aristocracy, which is only another way of saying more capable leadership. In any case, we, the crowd, however we may kid ourselves or be kidded, are most assuredly led, and should be.

Our chief distinction thus far, Mr. Brownell seems to believe, lies in our individual development of character and our fraternal spirit. We must wait for social maturity but already the author sees reason for hope in certain trends of popular culture—particularly in musical appreciation.

The following poem by Thomas Hardy, in which his attitude toward death was set forth, is of special interest now that the master lies dead in his beloved "Wessex":

THE SUBALTERN.
"Poor wanderer," said the leader
"I faintly should lighten thee,
But there be laws in force on high Which say it must not be."

"I would not freeze thee, shorn one," cried
The North, "knew I but how To warm my breath, to slack my stride;
But I am ruled as thou."

"Tomorrow I attack three wight,"
Said Shikens, "Yet I wear
I bear thy little ark no spite,
But am bid enter there."

"Come hither, son," I heard death say:
"I did not will a grave
Should end thy pilgrimage today,
But I, too, am a slave!"

We smiled upon each other then,
And life to me had less
Of that fell look it wore ere when

Sister to Have Income for Life, Then Property Goes to M. E. Orphans' Home Society.

The Methodist Orphans' Home Association, 4385 Maryland avenue, ultimately will receive the $100,000 estate of William Bull, retired insurance broker who died at Miami, Fla., Sunday, under his will filed for probate today.

The estate was left in trust for his sister, Mrs. Mary T. Atkinson, 3300 Lafayette avenue, who will get the income for life. Upon her death, the estate will go to the orphans' home association as a memorial to Mr. Bull's parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. John C. Bull.

The will also directs immediate payment of specific bequests totaling $5000 to relatives. Funeral services for Mr. Bull, who was 85 years old, were held yesterday at Mrs. Atkinson's residence. Burial was in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

Mr. Bull was a Civil War veteran and a pioneer St. Louis insurance man. He retired several years ago. Born in Shelbyville, Ky., he spent most of his life in St. Louis. When the Civil War began he joined the Confederate army, was captured and later released. In the 70s he organized Company E, First Regiment, National Guard. His company, considered the best trained in the organization, was known as the Rainwater Rifles. He was Inspector-General on the staff of Gov. David R. Francis.

Another sister, Mrs. T. L. Edelen, who resides with Mrs. Atkinson, also survives.

SAYS MISS MILLER CANNOT BECOME BUDDHIST TO WEL

By the Associated Press.
BOMBAY, British India, Jan. 13.—A new obstacle to the marriage of the former Maharajah of Indore and Miss Nancy Ann Miller of Seattle, Wash., came up yesterday when the secretary of the Hindu Missionary Society here declared Miss Miller could not be converted to Hinduism merely to enable her to marry the former Maharajah.

The former ruler has been in touch with the society in an effort to arrange for her conversion to the American girl.

Reports continue to come to Bombay that public opinion in Indore is strongly opposed to his taking a third wife. His second wife is prostrated over the proposed marriage.

By the Associated Press.
NUWARA ELIYA, Ceylon, Jan. 13.—Despite opposition to the pending marriage of the former Maharajah of Indore and Miss Nancy Ann Miller of Seattle, the pair are going ahead with plans for their wedding. Miss Miller, who is at a hotel here where the former Maharajah also is staying, has expressed resentment at the publicity attending announcement of the coming marriage. Asked about Miss Miller's expected conversion to Hinduism, the former Maharajah's private secretary said: "We have no definite plans for the future so long as the former Maharajah remains indisposed."

The former ruler has been ill for several days.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 13. THOUGHTS while strolling: A drug store offers chili con carne. Chronic "Must Sell Stock—Lease Expiring" stores. The bridge expert who looks like Harry Thaw. A Gay Ninety touch—a tandem bicycle for sale. More little red dynamite hats. Wonder when New York will get back its streets? Lindy, the cafe man.

Those young West Pointers who seem inclined to shove you off the sidewalk. Delicatessen clerks in blue smocks. The cafe with a huge pile of "prop" hats on the rack—and often empty. Flappers with a Jean Agels voice and police dogs. A. E. Matthews, the actor, Gloria Swanson is letting her hair grow.

Mumbling hags who fish in refuse cans. Hemstitching parlors with rows of bent backs. A push cart sale of carpet slippers. The shoelace rationing in the waiting room of an electrical mending shop. Those yapping lap dogs in limousines. May Allison and Jim Quirk.

More Spanish restaurants. Speaking for myself, I don't like Spanish food, shawls, scarves or dancing. Nor do I care for King Alfonso's profile. Ziegfeld gazing at his theater from across the street. The veils that come over one's eyes. And those sporty tweed coats for ladies.

A window dresser standing off to admire a wax dummy. Furniture stores appealing to honeymooners. While-you-wait print shops. Haberdasheries with most of their stock in the windows, that stay open all night. A patrol wagon backs up at a Turkish bath. Foreign magazine shops and quick lunches with radios.

Whatever became of 42d street's moving sidewalk? See the Lord's prayer on a pin head—5 cents. Shivering clerks in desolate soft drink stands. Speaking of Harry Thaw—that looks like him coming out of the Belmont. Scuffling red caps in front of Grand Central. Galloping commuters. The grand carpets spread to Twentieth Century trains. Information bureau clerks who never look at questioners. Faces solemn, gay and indifferent. The bright looking shops below the first level—selling everything from jewelry to tur overcoats.

A new club in an upper Broadway hotel features a bar for gentlemen and a separate bar for ladies. Needless to say it is strictly entre-nous and hotsy tosy.

THOSE of us who waste print-ers ink sobbing over beautiful cigarette girls in cafes and cabarets can save the sniveling for worthier causes. In a bankruptcy proceeding it developed a certain merchant kept his business going for several weeks by borrowing earnings of a friendly cigarette girl. She made more than $100 a week.

INCIDENTALLY, the highest salary paid to a woman theatrical star this season is said to be $5000 a week. She isn't worth it. Nobody is.

THE other morning in an apartment house, a knock at the wrong door brought a famous and beautiful ingenue of the stage. She had been aroused from sleep. I could imagine her awakening with a drowsy smile to stretch like a fluffy kitten. What I saw through the slit in the door was a frowny head, a sallow face, lusterless eyes and her voice was raspy.

THE younger gin drinking set has found something new in the flashlight dance. The dance room is darkened and each one of the wifey friends carries a pocket flashlight—used chiefly in finding his dance partner. The opportunity for necking is said to be grand.

YET even this could not provide a greater opportunity for petting than the game of post-office that raged 20 years ago. Except in those days the boys and girls called it "spooning."

NEW YORK forgets scandal quickly. In a cafe the other night I saw five men in a distinguished gathering who in the last 20 years have figured in such notoriously disgraceful episodes that two of them were unprintable.

ALUMNAE TO RAISE FUNDS FOR LENOX HALL EXPANSION
School for Girls Will Be Transferred From Founder to Former Students.

Financial details of a plan for the Lenox Hall Alumnae Association to take over ownership of that school for girls in Kirkwood from its principal and founder, Mrs. M. Louise Thomas, will be discussed at a luncheon at Hotel Coronado tomorrow. The amount of reimbursement of Mrs. Thomas, who established the school 21 years ago, has not been decided.

It is proposed to start a public campaign for funds next Monday, to make possible expansion of the facilities and capacity of the school, which now has more than 80 pupils. The purpose of the reorganization is to assure permanence of the institution. Mrs. Thomas is to continue as principal and directing head, but the alumnae will elect the board of trustees. Mrs. Paul F. Keatinge of 5610 Enright avenue is president of the alumnae association.

George Lieblich in Recital.
George Lieblich one of the old time thunderers of the keyboard gave a piano recital at Sheldon Auditorium last night which was dry, harsh, noisy and little else. Mr. Lieblich could discover more different ways of losing his melodic line than any performer outside of vaudeville. His program consisted of numbers by Beethoven, Liszt and Chopin.

ATWATER KENT RADIO

the NEW! A.C. set

NOW all in ONE!

Model 37

The astonishing price of the new, six-tube, full-vision One Dial, self-contained A. C. set includes everything except tubes and a speaker. No power accessories required—no batteries, no charger. For use only with 110-115 volt, 60-cycle, Alternating Current. Uses 6 A. C. tubes, and one rectifying tube.

$88

Here are a few of the other advantages of this unique new Atwater Kent 37:

1. Exquisite tone, without disturbing power-noises.
2. Shielded cabinet and doubly shielded built-in power supply—assuring this superiority of tone.
3. True single dial control, including innovations which cannot be copied without infringing on Atwater Kent patents.
4. Every working part of every receiver matched for that particular receiver.
5. Every part tested for accuracy—some even to a fraction of a thousandth of an inch.
6. Every part protected against deterioration. This means long life for your set—a lifetime of pleasure for you.
7. Full-vision dial. You don't have to scan the numbers closely. Read the whole dial at a glance, just as you look at your watch. A turn of your wrist takes you to every station within range in a split second.
8. Efficient volume control. You can bring the music down to a whisper.
9. A cabinet only 7 1/8 inches high, 17 1/4 inches long—with everything inside except the speaker. Small, convenient—you'll never have to ask "Where can I put it?"—it fits in anywhere.
10. Your choice of two color combinations—deep rich brown and old gold or golden brown and old gold—both in the new satin finish.
11. Price—$88. Without tubes.

We purposely put the price last because every prudent buyer

NOW AGAIN Atwater Kent makes a radical advance in radio. Here at last is an A. C. Set reduced to its essentials.

Compare this amazing Model 37 A. C. Receiver with every other set using power from an electric light socket. Remember that this handsome but inconspicuous little receiver contains everything except the speaker. You attach antenna, ground wire and speaker and then put the plug into any convenient electric light or wall socket. That is all there is to it.

All the power that you used to get from A, B, and C batteries comes from your house current now through a compact power supply built right into the receiver.

No array of wet and dry batteries, eliminators, chargers. A few moments after delivery, you can listen to music.

When we say that this new Atwater Kent 37 is unlike any other A. C. set you have ever seen, we mean just that.

How is it different, you ask?

For one thing, it's simpler—simpler inside, simpler outside. This counts in fine performance and easy operation, as well as in freedom from those little attentions that no one should have to bother with nowadays.

It's also smaller. Our engineers knew that the essentials which every electric set has to have could be built right into the set without making it big and clumsy if only the right way could be found. They found the way. Skillful arrangement has removed all waste space.

And so you have a true electric set, powered entirely from the house circuit, needing only your touch on the switch to send the current through the A. C. tubes and start the music—a true high-power A. C. set, but compact.

wants to know first what the set will do and how it will stand up as time goes on. Then comes price. Amazingly low? Yes—amazing if you didn't know that Atwater Kent has the facilities for large production which alone makes such prices possible.

If we made the Atwater Kent Model 37 a few at a time, it would be expensive.

Its price is low because the universal popularity of Atwater Kent Radio has brought the enormous savings of automatic, quantity production. These automatic processes, while achieving great economies, also attain a degree of engineering precision which is the marvel of the radio industry.

From the beginning, it has been the Atwater Kent policy to perfect a set before asking the public to approve it. And when we say "perfected," we mean a receiver which will give complete and lasting satisfaction; from which all trouble, crudities and non-essentials have been refined; which gives pure, natural tone; which is mechanically and scientifically right; and which can be produced economically.

We present Model 37 as the highest development of radio today—as giving all that you desire of radio—and at the lowest price for which perfected radio is offered.

Try this set at an Atwater Kent dealer's—or better still, at home. Raise the lid and see how it's made. Listen—and be convinced.

DECEMBER LEADS IN 1927 AUTO FATALITIES

Safety Council Offers Analysis of Traffic Accidents in St. Louis.

An analysis by the Safety Council of the 147 traffic fatalities in St. Louis last year showed that 69 occurred in the rush hours between 4:30 p. m. and 8:30 p. m.

December, with holiday congestion, was the worst month, with 23 traffic deaths. October followed with 18. There were 27 fatalities on Mondays, 26 on Tuesdays, 21 each on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays, 17 on Thursdays and 14 on Wednesdays.

"One of the most interesting points," commented Girard C. Varum, secretary and manager of the Council, was that of those who were fatally injured in traffic accidents, 20 were housewives, 17 were laborers, 17 were school boys, 14 had no occupation, 5 were school girls, 4 were seamen, 2 were carpenters, 2 were dressmakers, the remainder being spread over a wide classification.

"It is a question just what significance can be attached to these figures, but there does seem to be some merit in the argument that accidents are more frequent among those of a meager education than in the class where educational propaganda is more likely and more readily received. The fact that 31 persons or 21 per cent of those killed, either had no occupation or else were laborers may be significant. The fact that 22 deaths occurred among school children shows the need for a broader plan of safety education in the schools.

"The fact that 20 of the deaths, or 20 per cent of the total, occurred to housewives emphasizes the importance of carrying on a program of home safety education. In this connection, the St. Louis Safety Council last week inaugurated a plan of safety education designed primarily to reach and impress housewives with the importance of observing safety precautions. The medium of the radio is being used to connection with this work and home safety programs are being broadcast daily."

YOUTH CAUGHT REPAINTING AUTO STOLEN 6 MONTHS AGO

Says Man Who Gave Him a Ride Left Him With Machine on His Hands.

A young man who was painting an automobile, to change its color near the east approach of St. Charles bridge, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Deputy Sheriff of St. Charles County. The youth, who said he is Charles S. Gilbert and gave an address on South Third street, was said to have told police and deputies he was being by a man driving the machine in East St. Louis yesterday, who asked whether he wanted a ride.

"We rode through Webster and the man asked me to drive a while," Gilbert related. "When we got near the Lambert-St. Louis Flying field, the man left, saying he would meet me at the St. Charles bridge. While waiting for him there I noticed the machine looked pretty shabby and decided to paint it up."

The machine, police records show, was stolen last July from Alvin Franz, 4310 Grace avenue.

Try This New Kind of Magnesia

—multiplies the benefits plus a joy to take

NOW one of America's leading pharmaceutical laboratories has discovered a new formula of magnesia—successor to milk of magnesia, as you know it. It's called MINT-RATED Cream of Magnesia. With a cool mint flavor. An important improvement plus a delight to those who find ordinary magnesia "hard to take." It multiplies the already remarkable benefits of plain milk of magnesia.

It not only neutralizes the excessive stomach acids but removes the gas that forms as well. Thus in one way alone doubling its power over old ways. Relieves stomach gas in 15 minutes. Indigestion quickly, amazingly. And corrects lack of "acid balance" in the stomach and bowels.

Relieves most trying cases of constipation—gently clears the intestinal tract of its poison. And has a pleasant mint flavor instead of that chalky taste.

Try a large bottle for 50c at any drug store in this city. Simply ask for MINT-RATED Cream of Magnesia, or mail coupon for free bottle.

POLICE CAPTURE YOUTHS IN AUTO STOLEN IN HOLDUP

Two Suspects, Reported to Have Confessed Robbery, Will Be Viewed by Victims of Other Crimes.

Morris A. Newman, 4548 Flora place, drove into the garage in the rear of his home at 11:10 o'clock last night and was met by two youths who pressed a revolver against his side and ordered him to drive out again. He drove a short distance and was robbed of the car and $4.45.

An hour later police saw the car near Tower Grove and Elaine avenue and after a chase stopped it and arrested the occupants, who said they were Harry Schellinger, 18 years old, 224 Eads avenue, and Robert Smith, 17, 4106 Botanical avenue. Police reported a short length of gas pipe was found in the car and that a revolver was thrown out during the chase. The youths had $4.45 and 10 cartridges in their pockets. They confessed the robbery and were identified by Newman, the police said. Other victims of recent holdups will view them.

Pair Bound in Their Home.

Two men, one carrying two revolvers, the other wearing a black mask and called "Pete" by his companion, rang the doorbell and forced their way into the home of Frederick W. Bergesch, 2344 Herbert street, robbed Mrs. Bergesch of $10 and jewelry which she valued at $622 and tied Bergesch and his wife with bed sheeting torn into strips. The bound pair released themselves half an hour later.

As Otto A. Wangerin, 5203 Queens avenue, and his wife approached their front door last night, a man ran out pursued by Wangerin's police dog. Wangerin grabbed a suitcase from the man as he fled. Five minutes later the dog returned without his quarry. A checkup showed the burglar had escaped with a topcoat, the rest of his loot, chiefly apparel, being in the suitcase seized by Wangerin. The dog had been chained in the basement, but broke loose.

Robber Refuses to Take 30 Cents. "I've only got 30 cents—do you want that?" asked William F. Sommers, 5122 Kingshighway North-west, of an armed man who stopped Sommers and his wife near their home. "No," answered the armed man with an oath, as he ran away.

Gustave Enders, 2526 Shenandoah avenue, making a rent collection at 206 South Twenty-third street, was knocked down, choked and robbed of $25 by a Negro in a yard there.

As a robber who obtained $35 by holding up Frank Florjanski and two clerks in his grocery at 1421 North Twenty-first street, ran from the store, a clerk, Julius Raszewski, grabbed the robber's revolver and fired three shots at him. The robber escaped.

Other holdup victims were: Raymond Lawrence, 4369 Vista avenue, $15; Aaron Fleischman, drug-gist, 1546 Biddle street, $95, and customer, Albert Jones, $11.95; Les Lockerd, 2454 Delmar boulevard, and Miss Florence Doemel, $616; Trafford lane, $15; Harry Berg, Kroger store manager, 1215 Tamm avenue, $125; Samuel Botashnick, 2818 Sheridan avenue, $30.

$500 Ring Taken by Burglar.

A wedding ring set with diamonds and valued at $500 was stolen by a burglar who broke a window to enter the home of Henry E. Garthoffner at 4428 West Pine boulevard yesterday. It was reported to police.

FLOATING ISLAND DESSERT
PLAYS RETURN ENGAGEMENT
Skill in making a Soft Custard. Insures a Countless Number of Vice Desserts.

Floating Island, although old-fashioned in its extreme, is having a come-back in these days of simplified desserts. To be sure, floating island is only a carefully boiled custard made over hot water and allowed to thicken until it coats the back of a spoon.

The standard recipe for this custard calls for two cups scalded milk, four egg yolks, four table-spoons sugar, one-eighth teaspoon salt and one-half teaspoon vanilla. Scald the milk in the double boiler. Slightly mix the egg yolks, sugar and salt. Add egg mixture to the hot milk slowly, continuously stirring the water below the boiling point. The custard should thicken gradually and be removed from a fire, flavoring added, and chilled.

This custard may then be combined with every kind of fruit, with light cakes, and various sauces. It always appeals to children and is more wholesome for them than steamed or heavier forms using eggs.

Some of the ways this custard may be used include serving in individual cups or glasses garnished with whipped cream; poured over fresh fruit which has been sweetened to taste; poured over lady fingers or other light cake like sponge cake; used as a sauce to fruit gelatin or Bavarian creams; served with a meringue made from egg whites beaten stiff with sugar.

By flavoring and coloring the meringue with strawberry or grape juice the floating island will be as delicious as it is attractive.

POPCORN USED IN COOKING
Being a Corn Product It Can Be Used in Many Different Ways.
Popcorn has real food value, aside from its delightful flavor and appetizing crispness. It is, of course, a corn product, and can be used in a great many different ways.
Carefully popped popcorn makes a wholesome cereal to serve occasionally with milk and sugar. It can also be used to add flavor and food value to cream soups. Chopped fine, it makes delightful muffins and can even be used in some forms of cookies. Then, of course, there are always the popular and well-known molasses popcorn candies for children as well as grownups.

MEAT SUPPLIES PROTEIN
About a Half-Pound of Lean Meat Will Supply the Daily Need.
To have good health one must eat four ounces of protein food every day. Of course many of the things we consume contain some protein, but the chief supply comes from lean meat.
Four ounces is a small amount, a quarter of a pound, but you get meat, even lean meat, contains more or less fat, fiber water and other ingredients besides protein. On this account it is probable that a half-pound, or one-third-quarter of a pound of normally lean meat will not give an over supply of protein.

Uses of Cereals.
A nourishing wholesome dish for the youngsters.
A delightful addition to berries and fruits.
Delicious griddle cakes.
Cakes and muffins that melt in your mouth.
A rich thickening for soups, chowders and gravies.
Tasty dressing for chops, cutlets, fish, oysters, clams, eggplant, etc.

USE DRIED FRUITS IN PLANNING MENUS

They Are Generally Graded According to Size Rather Than Quality.

Fruit has come to be considered an essential part of our daily food supply. This is because it furnishes a proportion of the valuable mineral salts and vitamins and bulk that are necessary for proper body functioning. Fresh fruit, however, is not always available at this time of year, but the dried fruits can be bought in all parts of the country and the improved methods used in drying and preparing them for market, make them especially tempting and appetizing.

Prunes, raisins, apricots and apples are perhaps the best known or at least the most widely used. There are, however, the dried peaches, pears, cherries and dates. These latter are sometimes considered more of a sweet treat than a fruit, but they should be classified and used as are the other fruits.

Dried fruits contain a large amount of sugar as only well-ripened fruit is used for drying and this, of course, contains the largest amount of fruit sugars. In the drying process, the water is evaporated and in this manner the sugars and other solids are concentrated.

There was a time when raisins were only sold in clusters or loose with all the seeds in. It was laborious work to use raisins in cooking in those days. Now we have machinery that removes the seeds from the raisins and we buy them seeded and packed in boxes, ready to use, or if we prefer, we can buy a variety that is grown without the seeds.

COLD WEATHER NOT ENOUGH TO PROPERLY PRESERVE FOOD

Winter Temperatures Cannot Be Substituted for Refrigerator Service.

Temperature is just one feature of refrigeration and must be related with proper circulation and a properly balanced humidity if it is to produce the results expected of it.

The window box or back porch gives temperatures rarely adequate, frequently too low, and often too high for this purpose even in mid-winter. There is, of course, no provision made for circulation and humidity.

Delicate foods require a certain amount of moisture if their natural flavors and juices are to be preserved. While circulation is present this moisture is in constant motion, absorbing the impurities and odors of the food and carrying them off with the moving air. Having the product in its natural state of moistness and moisture content. When no provision is made for circulation, the moisture is deposited on the surface of the food, producing stagnation, which in turn results in mold and decay.

An ice-cooled refrigerator is so constructed as to provide for these three refrigeration necessities: Adequate low temperature, proper circulation and humidity.

A cold air drop under the ice chamber admits the cold air to the milk chamber beneath. A partition between the ice compartment and the provision chamber, commonly called a baffle, in the type floor, one-half teaspoon salt, prevents the air from entering the provision chamber until it has dropped below the end of the baffle to the floor of the refrigerator where it moves over to the other side. The air from entering the provision chamber in the food are absorbed by the air and as it becomes warmer it rises above the top of the baffle and passes between the upper end of the baffle and the top of the refrigerator into the ice compartment making room for the purified air entering below.

In the case of a box which has the ice chamber at the top, cold air enters the provision chamber from the center of the floor of the refrigerator.

Creamed Cheese DEVELY

Everyone likes French Creamed Cheese for casseroles, soups, etc. It is so rich in delicious flavor and nourishment. Made from pure cream from a special formula, exclusive of any preservatives. Order a jar today. Please—

RECIPES FOR DISHES IN WEEK'S MENUS

Variety in Serving Simple Foods Keeps Up the Family's Interest.

Braised celery offers a slightly different method of cooking this wholesome vegetable and one that may be rather unfamiliar. Cut the top stems off the celery and split each bunch lengthwise into two or three pieces. Wash thoroughly and allow one bunch for each serving. Melt two tablespoons of butter in a broad shallow pan. Put in the celery and two tablespoons of water. Cover the pan and cook very slowly for about 25 minutes. It may be necessary to add one or two more tablespoons of water, but do not do it unless there is danger of the celery burning. When the celery is tender sprinkle with a little salt and serve very hot. Each stalk will keep its shape and will be tender and rather translucent, and contain all of the flavor and nutritive qualities of the celery itself.

Nut Loaf.
Two cups of dried bread crumbs, one cup of diced celery, one-eighth teaspoon of pepper, one and one-half to two cups of tomato juice, one cup of finely chopped nuts or nut meal, one teaspoon of salt, two eggs, one small minced onion, one-half teaspoon of Worcestershire sauce.

The bread crumbs should be stale enough to put through a meat chopper. Mix the crumbs with the onion and the seasonings. Then add the beaten eggs and tomato juice, using either one and one-half or two cups, according to the dryness of the bread crumbs. The mixture should be just moist enough to shape into a loaf. Place in a greased pan, brush with melted fat and bake in a moderate oven 45 minutes. Serve hot with cream sauce.

Squash Custard.
One cup baked or steamed squash, one and one-half cups milk, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, two eggs, one-third cup sugar (brown or white), one-quarter teaspoon ginger, one-half teaspoon salt.

Rub the squash through a strainer. Beat the eggs and add to the squash with the sugar, seasonings and milk. Mix until well blended. Pour into small buttered custard cups; stand in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven for 25 minutes or until firm. Serve either plain or with a spoon of whipped cream.

Baked Figs.
One pound dried pulled figs, two tablespoons sugar, two cups water, one-half small lemon or orange cut in slices.

Wash the figs and put into a casserole dish with the water, sugar and lemon or orange. Cover closely and bake in a slow oven for one and one-half hours, or until the figs are well plumped and tender. Add a little more water if necessary during the cooking. Serve cold.

Diced Apples With Cream.
This combination is a good breakfast or dessert dish. Large, rather firm red apples such as Jonathans or Delicious are best. Peel the apples. Cut in small dice and serve with a sprinkling of powdered sugar and with a liberal quantity of this cream. Sometimes a very small amount of cinnamon may be mixed with the powdered sugar before sprinkling over the apples.

HOW TO MAKE PIE PASTRY

Pastry is Easy to Make Providing Directions Are Followed.

For one medium-sized pie.

One and one-half cups pastry flour, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half cup shortening, one-third cup very cold water.

Sift the flour and the salt twice. Rub in the shortening with a fork until it is thoroughly blended with the flour, that is, until there are no lumps of fat to be seen in the mixture. Add the cold water a little at a time, mixing it in with a fork until a very stiff dough is formed. If too much water is used, the pie crust will be tough. Turn the dough out on a floured board and roll quickly and lightly until one-third of an inch thick. Then fold in three layers and roll out again to fit the pie plate. Pastry should always be baked in a hot oven and if the room is warm in which it is mixed, it is best to chill it before baking.

IMPORTANCE OF CABBAGE

This One-Time Humble Vegetable Has Progressed in Popular Favor. Cabbage is one of the most important and the most valuable of the winter vegetables. Fresh cabbage is firm and white in color. Raw cabbage is as a rule easy to digest and can be served in a number of ways. Finely chopped or shredded and served alone or combined with other foods, it makes a delightful winter salad and should be used several times a week to insure good health.

Brussels sprouts belong to the same family as cabbage. Most people cook Brussels sprouts too long and for that reason they are often considered indigestible. These should not be cooked more than 20 to 25 minutes. Boiling water should always be used in cooking vegetables, and cabbage or Brussels sprouts are best cooked uncovered.

COLD WEATHER NOT ENOUGH TO PROPERLY PRESERVE FOOD

Winter Temperatures Cannot Be Substituted for Refrigerator Service.

Temperature is just one feature of refrigeration and must be correlated with proper circulation and delicately balanced humidity if it is to produce the results expected of it.

The window box or back porch give temperatures rarely adequate, frequently too low and often too high for this purpose even in mid-winter. There is, of course, no provision made for circulation and humidity.

It is not widely understood that a low temperature alone does not preserve food, that an excessively low temperature is positively harmful and that perfectly dry air is not at all a desirable method of preserving food.

A cold air drop under the ice chamber admits the cold air to the milk chamber beneath. A partition between the ice compartment and the provision chamber, commonly called a baffle, in the type of box used at the side, prevents the air from entering the provision chamber until it has dropped below the end of the baffle to the floor of the refrigerator where it moves over to the other side. The heat and impurities of bacterial action in the food are absorbed by the air and as it becomes warmer it rises above the top of the baffle and passes between the upper end of the baffle and the top of the refrigerator into the ice compartment making room for the cold air entering below.

In the case of a box which has the ice chamber at the top, the cold air enters the provision chamber the center of the floor of the ice compartment, drops to the floor of the box, divides and rises along the sides entering the ice chamber by means of flues constructed for that purpose. It is this action which constitutes refrigeration and without which no food preservation is possible.

Second-hand beauty

THE world is full of women who are beginning to lose the fresh bloom of health—and are feverishly searching for a substitute. Eagerly, hopefully, they haunt the beauty shops. Trying this. Trying that. Buying beauty by the hour.

At best what an empty achievement they attain! Second-hand beauty. What a pitiful substitute for the natural charm of health!

Life could tell a vastly different story if more women knew the dreadful part constipation plays in wrecking youth and beauty. If more men but realized how this terrible scourge undermines strength and health. Constipation is at the bottom of many a trouble. It is the weight on drooping shoulders. The ache in dragging muscles. The pain in throbbing heads. The cause of literally dozens of diseases.

And more's the shame when it can be so easily and quickly relieved. So pleasantly! Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to bring prompt relief. More than that—lasting, safe prevention.

• Why "all-bran" is so effective

It is "bulk" that combats constipation. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is rich in bulk because it is 100% bran. This bulk absorbs moisture and distributes it throughout the alimentary canal. At the same time, it gently distends the intestines. Exercising them. Sweeping out poisonous wastes. Part-bran products seldom contain sufficient bulk to do this effectively. That is why doctors recommend Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Because it is 100% bran and accomplishes 100% results.

Better than drugs

Unlike habit-forming pills and laxatives whose dose must be continually increased to remain effective—the quantity of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN you require need never vary. ALL-BRAN works as nature works—naturally. A simple, healthful cereal that combines valuable food elements as well as the corrective bulk needed in the diet. Isn't that much better than pills or drugs?

Eat with milk or cream—or with fruits or honey added for delicious variety. Soaking a few moments in milk brings out all its nut-like flavor. Use it in cooking too. Try the recipes on every package. Sprinkle it into soups. Mix it with other cereals. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal . . . for healthful regularity.

Be sure, though, you get genuine Kellogg's—the original ALL-BRAN. Don't risk part-bran substitutes. At most, they can prove but partially effective. ALL-BRAN is sold by grocers everywhere. Served at hotels and restaurants. On dining-cars. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Guaranteed!

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is sold with this definite guarantee: Eat it according to directions. If it does not relieve constipation safely, we will refund the purchase price.

Creamed Cheese DEVELY

GRAND 4400

USE DRIED LIMA BEANS. IN THE FAMILY MENU

They Will Demonstrate Their Usefulness for Almost Any Occasion.

Because of their richness, their delicacy of flavor and the ease with which they may be prepared, limas are ideally suited for those dishes which constitute an important part of the main course of the meal.

The recipes which follow have been selected out of all the many suggested.

Basic Recipe.
To reheat the fresh, juicy tenderness of dried California limas, soak them in cold water from six to eight hours. Drain. Cover with boiling water and cook slowly until tender (about 20 minutes). Add salt after 20 minutes cooking. (This basic recipe applies to either large or baby limas.)

Creamed Lima Beans.
Take two cups cooked dried limas, one cup cream or milk, two tablespoons butter, three tablespoons flour, one bouillon cube and pepper and salt to taste. Melt butter and flour, stir until smooth, then add milk and bouillon cube and cook, stirring constantly, until thick. Add limas and reheat.

Limas and Asparagus.
Take two cups of the creamed limas cooked according to above recipe, two cups canned asparagus tips, and one-half cup grated cheese. Add the asparagus tips and the grated cheese to the hot creamed limas and cook until thoroughly heated and the cheese is melted. Serve on toast points or in ramekins or patty shells.

Strive for Variety.
Variety in serving simple foods is one of the surest ways of keeping up the family's interest in such foods. Children are very apt to tire of hot cereals that are served in the same way every day. The addition of some of the dry fruits to the cereal just before serving offers a definite appetite appeal. Increases the food value and changes the flavor.

SEVERAL CLEVER CANAPES AND HOW TO MAKE THEM

As an appetizer in place of the soup course, or preceding it, it is very smart to serve a canape or cocktail. Here are a few suggestions:

Cut hard cooked eggs in half, and remove yolks. Mix with salad dressing and refill the whites. Serve a half egg topped with a bit of parsley on a thin slice of tomato, garnished around the edge with stuffed olives, standing on end.

Spread rounds of toast with salad dressing. Across the top of each place alternately sardines and thin strips of dill pickles. Garnish with crisp cross of pimento.

Cut toast with fancy cutters, and spread with the yolks of hard cooked eggs creamed with salad dressing and mixed with sweet pickles, chopped. Outline edge of toast with finely chopped whites of eggs, and garnish center with rings of stuffed olives.

Mix grated American cheese with a little cream and spread on rounds of toasted bread. Season with paprika, and place in a hot oven until golden brown. Remove from oven and sprinkle with olives, chopped.

COLORFUL KITCHENS HELP NUTRITION

A Carefully Planned Scheme May Literally Help Nutrition.

The Queen of Hearts she was some tarts—all on a summer's day—the Knave of Hearts, he was those tarts—and you know the rest of the story.

Did it ever seem strange to you in those delightfully remembered days of your childhood that the Queen should concern herself with tart making? The Queen evidently had one of those new color kitchens where you can step to matrons in a light green ensemble—saucepan—or steam spinach in a scarlet kettle, or cook a canary in a canary yellow saucepan, although the story doesn't say so.

Now lay out on your work table all the utensils required and measure accurately the ingredients. Use standard measuring cups and spoons to insure uniform quantities. Measure both sugars into the bowl, add the melted Crisco—pure vegetable shortening is much superior to an animal fat—heat to a creamy one, add eggs, a little at a time; then the nuts, St. Louis, soda, salt and spices together twice. Mix thoroughly, turn on floured board, shape into rolls about 2½ inches in diameter. Lay on greased baking pan and set in the oven.

The batter is too soft when first mixed to permit slicing. The chilling sets it so it slices easily and sometimes two hours in the icebox is enough. Lay on baking pan far enough apart so the won't spread together. Bake in quick oven.

When cookies are rolled the last ones are not so good as the first because in rolling the trimmings more flour is worked in which makes them dry and crumbly. This is avoided when cookie batter is made to drop from a spoon directly into the baking pan without any rolling, as suggested in this recipe.

If you try this new way you will never go back to the old, and your cookies will be more popular than all.

ALLURING OYSTER COOKERY
A WINTER FOOD DELIGHT
In the Cold Months Oysters Offer a Valuable Challenge From Meats.

Real oyster lovers recognize only two divisions of the year—those when oysters "let or no let" in season, and they prove their point or try to by telling you that all the 12 months follow one right after the other just at the time of the year when oysters are at their best, and that, therefore, it must be true. Whether it is so or not, look forward to the oyster season as holding one of the food delights of the year.

Oysters are protein or building body food, and may be used instead of meat. They are readily digested and assimilated, they lack carbohydrates and fats, and should be combined with them whenever they are served as the main part of a meal—this explains perhaps the attractiveness of hot oyster stew with plenty of crackers, or of scalloped oysters where a quantity of bread crumbs are used. Fried oysters combined with an accompaniment of another attractive manner, while creamed oysters of toast supply all the nutritive qualities necessary for a meal.

Oysters require very little cooking. In fact if they are overcooked, not only is the flavor spoiled, but part of the digestibility is lost. Oyster stews are extremely popular and very nourishing food for cold weather. However, very often oysters are over-cooked, and for that reason I am giving you the following recipe, which will serve four people generously: Two dozen oysters, one quart of milk, two tablespoons of butter, one-half teaspoon of sugar, a dash of nutmeg, one thick slice of onion (the may be omitted). Pick over the oysters to remove any bits of shell until the edges curl up, and the oysters are plump. Do not let them boil. Scald the milk with the butter, slice of onion and the other seasonings. Removing slice of onion, and pour the milk into the oyster pan. Crumble a few crackers into the stew and serve immediately.

VALUE OF LIVER DISHES
Modern Dieticians Stress the Value of This Meat Product.
So far as energy is concerned liver furnishes about as much as lean beef and other commonly used meats, little more than a little less than others. The fat contained in liver is also about the same as the average lean meat. The latest and most important discovery regarding the food value of liver, however, is the vitamin. Most of the so-called organs for food, liver, sweet bread, heart and so on, contain considerable quantities of some of the very important vitamins.

The next thing to emphasize about liver is the fact that it may be used with discretion. For example, the texture of the meat is very "close" the fibers being very close together. Because of this it is rather difficult for young children or for those that have been in any way impaired. The general conclusion is then that liver is a very valuable food for healthy adults if it is used with discretion.

Stuffed Celery Uniquely.
Take one stalk of celery, two-fourths cup peanut butter, one-half cup shredded canned pineapple and a few grains salt.

Wash and separate sticks of celery; place in towel in cold place to chill. Blend pineapple with peanut butter, add salt and stuff sticks of celery with mixture.

TRY THE MODERN WAY OF MAKING COOKIES

Keep Abreast of the Times Through Trying New Baking Methods.

Modern methods have been introduced into making cookies. In earlier days cookies had to be mixed and rolled and cut out rolled again, cut out and the process repeated as long as there was enough scraps of dough left to make a round.

In illustration of the new method, try making these delicious nut waters which do not have to be rolled out and which will keep long time, if you hide them.

Second modern thing about these wafers is that you can put the mixture in the icebox, slicing and baking a few at a time.

To make these wafers take one cup brown sugar, one cup white sugar, one and one-half cup melting shortening, four and one-half cup flour, three eggs well beaten, two teaspoons soda, one teaspoon cinnamon and one teaspoon salt. On cup chopped nuts (blanched almonds are best).

Now lay out on your work table all the utensils required and measure accurately the ingredients. Use standard measuring cups and spoons to insure uniform quantities. Measure both sugars into the bowl, add the melted Crisco—pure vegetable shortening is much superior to an animal fat—heat to a creamy one, add eggs, a little at a time; then the nuts, St. Louis, soda, salt and spices together twice. $500.00 in Cash Prizes

For the Best Reasons

Why Your Grocer Should Sell 3 Minute Oat Flakes

It is important to us to know why the people of St. Louis and its suburbs think their grocers should sell the genuine 3 Minute Oat Flakes. To get this valuable information, we are offering $500.00 in cash prizes for the best letters or essays on this subject: "Why I Think My Grocer Should Sell 3 Minute Oat Flakes." Thousands of women in other cities have given us their reasons and to assist you we are listing below 3 good reasons. Read them over, then write your answer—it may be the very one which will win the first prize in St. Louis.

3 GOOD REASONS

1 Because It Is Fireless Cooked—at the Mill—for 12 Hours.
3-Minute Oat Flakes is different from any oat product that you have ever tasted, in quality, appearance and flavor. This is because it is made under our new and exclusive process, during which it is Fireless Cooked—at the mill—for 12 hours. Once you have tried 3-Minute Oat Flakes you will never again be satisfied with ordinary oats, therefore, look for the Big Red 3 on the package which distinguishes the genuine from all imitations.

2 Because It Has a New Nut-Like Flavor Found in No Other Oats
Fireless cooked—at the Mill—for 12 Hours in big tight cookers that retain and thoroughly blend all of the proteins, minerals, volatile oils and vitamins, these plump, selected oat grains develop a new, nut-like deliciousness heretofore unknown in any oat product.

3 Because Children Like It and It Is Good for Them.
Children who must be coaxed to eat their cereal are fond of 3-Minute Oat Flakes because of its light, fluffy, appetizing appearance in the dish and its different delicious flavor. As all of the food value of the whole grain is retained, it is an unequalled builder for their little bodies.

After investigation, if you find the grocers in your neighborhood are not yet selling 3-Minute Oat Flakes, send us this coupon completely filled out together with 3c for postage and we will mail you a trial sample and a booklet containing many reasons why your grocer should sell 3 Minute Oat Flakes.

COLORFUL KITCHENS HELP NUTRITION

A Carefully Planned Color Scheme May Literally Help Nutrition.

The Queen of Hearts she made some tarts—all on a summer's day—the Knave of Hearts, he stole those tarts—and you know the rest of the story.

Did it ever seem strange to you in those delightfully democratic days of your childhood that the Queen should concern herself with tart making? The Queen evidently had one of those new colorful kitchens where you can stew tomatoes in a light green enamel saucepan—or steam spinach in a scarlet kettle, or cook a custard in a canary yellow saucepan. And although the story doesn't say so, the Knave of Hearts undoubtedly stole the pie pans as well. How could he resist—nice red open-faced tarts—in a nice red pie pan. For the kitchen has come into its own, with a well-planned color scheme, aprons, dish towels, curtains, crockery and pots and pans to match. Nowadays tart thieving young men might run away—not with the pie pans, but with the Queen.

Color has a marvelous effect on your nerves and mind. You simply can't be a pessimist if you live with happy colors. A yellow and green kitchen simply radiates joy. Imagine a kitchen inspired by that Czech-Slovakian tea set your second cousin's great aunt Augusta's husband gave you for Christmas. How vivid it is with the sprawling conventional lurid designs in vermilion, orange, black and green.

Just imagine it decorating the shelves of a hanging rack painted to match the trim which is Algerian blue with narrow pencil lines of black and edges of vermilion or Chinese red against walls of pale yellow-green. Choose chairs with triangular shaped backs, paint them in Algerian blue with decorations of the same design as the one on the crockery. Paint this motif also on the panels of your blue cupboard and cabinet doors, your ice chest and your breakfast set. Outline each panel in a narrow rim of black about one-half to inch wide, and with a very thin pencil rim of Chinese red within the black. Use curtains made of theatrical gauze. Then with bright red spots and pans on your stove, or that new heavenly shade of blue enameled ware, you may have a kitchen fit for a queen and may prepare meals fit for a king. A sink of jet black slate or of yellow porcelain would be very appropriate here.

The early American and the Norman-French styles suggest delightful kitchens. The little Dutch blue and white effects are easy to carry out especially if you add a third color of either red or yellow, or green. Try blue organdy curtains at the window or blue and white checked gingham—a blue head may outline the panels of your white cabinets and canary-yellow enameled pans will set on your stove and shelves.

TRY THE MODERN WAY OF MAKING COOKIES

Keep Abreast of the Times Through Trying New Baking Methods.

Modern methods have been injected into making cookies. In earlier days cookies had to be mixed and rolled and cut out, rolled again, cut out and the process repeated as long as there was enough scraps of dough left to make a round.

In illustration of the new method, try making these delicious nut wafers which do not have to be rolled out and which will keep a long time, if you hide them. A second modern thing about these wafers is that you can put the mixture in the icebox, slicing and baking a few at a time.

To make these wafers take one cup brown sugar, one cup white sugar, one and one-half cups flour, three eggs well beaten, two teaspoons soda, one teaspoon cinnamon and one teaspoon salt. One cup chopped nuts (blanched almonds are best).

Now lay out on your work table all the utensils required and measure accurately the ingredients. Use standard measuring cups and spoons to insure uniform quantities. Measure both sugars into a bowl, add the melted Crisco—a pure vegetable shortening is much superior to an animal fat—and beat to a cream. Add eggs, a little at a time; then the nuts. Sift flour, soda, salt and spices together twice. Mix thoroughly, turn on floured board, shape into rolls about 2 1/2 inches in diameter. Lay on greased baking pan and set in icebox.

The batter is too soft when first mixed to permit slicing. The chilling sets it so it slices easily and sometimes two hours in the icebox is enough. The next day slice down very thin, lay on baking pan far enough apart so they won't spread together. Bake in a quick oven.

When cookies are rolled the last ones are not nearly so good as the first because in re-rolling the trimmings more flour is worked in which makes them dry and crumbly. This is avoided when cookie batter is made to drop from a spoon directly on to the baking pan or chilled in the icebox and sliced without any rolling, as suggested in this recipe.

If you try this new way you will never go back to the old and your cookies will be more popular than ever.

DARLO J. DISHWASHER

"Turns Drudgery Into Joy"

COMPLETE WITH DRAINER RACK
& FOUNTAIN BRUSHES
FOR POTS & PANS

$2.48

All you do is place the dishes, as they leave your table, in the rack awaiting them in your sink; turn on hot water, press the soap lever (which mixes the soap and water), spray the dishes, push back the soap lever for clear water, and rinse them. Then let them dry without your valued presence.

For Pots and Pans
A Fountain Brush—sturdy, and with a fine capacity for real scrubbing—snaps instantly on Hose Handle, enabling you to scour first with hot, sudsy water and then with clear rinsing water—and without your hands even touching the water.

The Darlo Jr. sells regularly for $5.00. We have only a limited number to distribute through our various stores. These we purchased at very low cost, thus enabling us to offer them at this low price.

THE YEAR-ROUND BANANA

Is Easily Adapted to Delicious Hurry-Up Deserts.

Bananas are always in season and it takes such a few seconds to prepare them tastily that they can be classed as our most convenient of fruits. Just to slice them and serve them with an otherwise plain dessert will change that dish to one that will be joyfully welcomed by the consumer.

"Just Sliced Bananas"
But, Oh! How Good!

1—Bananas sliced and served with whipped cream or soft custard with a sprinkling of grated sweet chocolate or coconut over the top.
2—Bananas sliced in a ring as a base for the baked custard or blanc mange and this in turn topped with a cube of tart red jelly makes a pretty dessert.
3—Bananas sliced in a ring and this ring on a ring of sliced oranges, and these topped with whipped cream, to which has been added crushed pineapple and maraschino cherries, give a dessert de luxe.
4—Or, if a stale cake is handy, slice it and toast it. Then make a fluffy sauce of whipped cream, to this add mashed banana pulp, powdered sugar, lemon juice, bit of the grated rind and shredded dates, or jelly is tasty if folded in with the bananas. Serve on the cake garnished with a few slices of bananas and other fruit if it is used in the sauce.

Baked Bananas
Peel bananas and cut in halves lengthwise. Place in a buttered baking dish. Sprinkle with one teaspoon brown sugar and one-half teaspoon lemon juice to each banana. Bake in a moderate oven (375°F.) twenty to twenty-five minutes.

There are so many ways of serving bananas. Did you see last week's Cookery News? There were some delicious banana recipes in it. Call me if you missed this issue.

FEEDING A CHILD THROUGH HER EYES

A Few Suggestions for Coaxing a Sick Little Girl to Eat.

When I speak of feeding a child through her eyes, I have in mind to be whimsical with her food. Cutting her breakfast orange in delicate slices and arranging the slices to form a simple design around the plate. Cutting her breakfast toast in strips or triangles instead of serving it in unimaginative if wholesome slices. Heating her breakfast cereal coffee so piping hot and serving it with such delicious cream as to make her feel that she is having, not a make-shift but a real particular brand of breakfast beverage.

Converting her mid-morning glass of milk into an ice cream soda by mixing with fruit juices and serving it in an unusually attractive glass.

Stuffing her luncheon baked potato with cottage cheese and thus surprising her eyes as well as nourishing her body with a well-rounded combination of body-building and body-regulating material, represented by these two foods.

Studying color combinations for her luncheon dessert of fruit so as to "make a picture" of the servings, calling attention perhaps to the combination of colors and teaching her that she can paint her own cheeks far more artistically than any vanity box can ever hope to accomplish.

Scraping and broiling her dinner meat cake or chop so as to present meat fibers that are ready for young digestion and yet lack any suspicion of over-hearty fat meat, against which many sensitive children rebel.

Using the color idea in selecting and serving the dinner vegetables so that she may even think of her dinner salad as something which will give her an idea for her drawing or painting lesson next day.

Freezing her dinner ice cream in fancy molds so that she can eat the ears from a frozen bunny or sip at the center of a frozen peach.

Cutting her little cakes in fancy shapes so that she may make a small cannibal of herself while she munches a gingerbread man or a sugar-cookie lady.

Now I am aware that such a program would not "work" with every child. I do submit, however, that a delicate little girl of approximately this age will be likely to respond to "surprises." Fortunately, boys seldom trouble us with their lack of appetite. Again, girls who have not reached the storm and stress period of adolescence must make the most of these earlier years to acquire an appetite.

Such experiments as I have outlined will furnish ideas as to the type of experimentation that is frequently helpful.

Prune Pudding. Soak and cook till tender half a pound of prunes, cool and remove pits. Add to the pulp, one cupful of sugar, the grated rind of half a lemon, a small piece of stick cinnamon and one and a half cups of boiling water. Simmer 10 minutes. Meantime mix one-third cupful of cornstarch with enough water to make a liquid add to the prune mixture and cook five minutes. Add the lemon juice, then pour into a serving dish. Serve warm or cold with whipped or plain cream.

Open the way to Healthful Cleanliness. Simply open the little port-holes in the top of the package and out comes Old Dutch Cleanser to bring you Healthful Cleanliness—so important to every home.

Old Dutch simplifies housework, it is safe, thorough, economical. There's nothing else like it for porcelain and enamel, aluminum, glass ware, cooking utensils, tile, painted woodwork, floors, windows, refrigerators, stoves, etc. Protects the surface and assures its longer life.

Ripe Bananas Deserve Their Great Popularity

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
Former Health Commissioner of New York City
United States Senator From New York

To my mind there is no fruit more appearing to the eye than a bunch of bananas when they are in the stage of that beautiful yellow color. They are not quite ready yet to supply their highest food values, but they are beautiful to look at.

The time to eat the banana is when the yellow of the skin takes on a golden tint and speckles of brown appear. Even when there is considerable widening of the brown spots, the fruit is good if the pulp is not discolored.

Years ago I ran upon a famous man taking a noonday lunch, two big bananas supplying his needs. He asked: "Are those good to eat, doctor?"

My answer was: "How do I look? When I was a young doctor I was too poor to buy a regular breakfast every morning. To vary the monotony of simplicity, I had for breakfast every second morning two bananas. I thrived on them!"

A great many folks think this fruit is indigestible. That is all nonsense. Of course, if you eat the bananas green or half ripe, they will harm you.

There is a great deal of difference between a ripe banana and an unripe one. A green banana is about one-fifth starch. It must be remembered that raw starch is irritating to the human stomach.

But it is quite another story when we are dealing with a banana which is fully ripe. The starch has turned to sugar. In this stage it is one of the most digestible of foods.

Contrast the digestion of a ripe banana with that of a soft boiled egg. It takes three and a half hours to digest the latter. The banana is taken care of in less than two hours.

Not only is there a quantity of sugar in the banana, but also it contains a good deal of protein and the mysterious vitamins. Eaten with milk, you have a dish which is remarkably well balanced.

Here is a remarkable fact: An acre of bananas will supply food values three or four times as great as an acre planted to potatoes, corn or wheat. I do not mean by this that bananas can replace the cereals. They cannot, because the grains carry minerals and other elements of the greatest value to the body.

But the banana is a fruit of such value that it should be eaten more commonly than it is. It keeps well. Its natural covering protects and preserves it. It is always ready to be served.

The banana is a fruit which does not deteriorate. It is picked green, but ripens just as it would if left to nature.

I hope I have said enough to show that the banana deserves its popularity.

Limas With Bacon.

Put cooked, dried limas in baking dish, cover with tomato sauce and place thin slices of bacon over top. Bake in a hot oven until bacon is crisp and brown.

Raisin Bread for Toast.

Use raisin bread for making the breakfast toast. There is a reason for this in that such a combination is an excellent way of introducing dried fruit into the diet. This plan also has another advantage. The toast resulting from the use of raisin bread is extremely palatable, some and makes a good change for those who tire of plain toast and toast.

SOVIET EXHIBIT DEMOLISHED IN RAID IN BELGIUM

Youths Armed With Cudgels Restrain Guests at Opening and Reduce Displays to Debris.

DOWN WITH RED
RUSSIA, THEIR CRY

Destruction Protest Against "Lies" Invaders Say—Describe Selves as Nationalists.

By the Associated Press. BRUSSELS, Belgium, Jan. 12.—What was once a Soviet exhibition today was a heap of debris after an orgy of destruction by Nationalist youths.

The outbreak of more than 20 turbulent youths dumfounded the guests gathered for the opening of the exhibit, organized by the League of Nations League of Nations International Relations. The invaders were armed with cudgels.

The leader of the band blew a whistle. At the signal the party divided, some to prevent the exhibition staff from interfering or cutting aid while the others set to work to smash everything.

The bust of Lenin was dashed to the floor and splintered, and the busts of other prominent communists were similarly treated. Contents of the shelves were swept to the floor. Pictures were smashed and furniture and hangings destroyed. The band went from room to room, thoroughly carrying out their work of demolition.

The raiders said they belonged to the League of Nationalist Youth and the action was a protest against "lies" which are giving a false idea of the present Russia and a revolting picture of Charles Russia.

Their work of destruction completed and at a given signal by the leader, the Nationalists, flushed but exultant, reformed their ranks. They marched out, distributing leaflets and shouting: "Down with Soviet Russia!"

On reaching the street, the youths dispersed quickly through side streets without police interference.

The invaders adopted gentle methods with those who tried to restrain them, merely holding their arms to their sides and thus preventing them from interfering. No one was injured. A police investigation was started.

MAN'S CHANGE OF HEART WINS CITIZENSHIP AFTER 12 YEARS
John Kuk of East St. Louis Now an American, but Government Will Appeal.

After 12 years' effort, John Kuk, a tailor, of 915 Lynch avenue, East St. Louis, gained the status of an American citizen today, but the Government still is opposing him and will appeal to a Federal Appellate Tribunal.

Kuk, a native of Austria-Hungary, obtained his first papers preparatory to citizenship in 1916, but when the United States entered the World War, avoided army service by declining to renounce allegiance to his old country. In 1920 he sought final papers, but the Government threatened to deport him unless he renounced his old citizenship. Kuk then announced the intention to appeal.

This proceeding was dropped. But a decree was entered in the St. Louis City Court forever barring him from citizenship. Last March this order was set aside. In the same court, today, Judge Borders granted Kuk his long-sought desire, saying Kuk had been a good resident and had changed his political belief. The Judge thought that change of heart entitled Kuk to citizenship, but Immigration Examiner Coles announced the intention to appeal.

BANKRUPT PRINTER ADMITS LIABILITIES OF $81,049
John J. Farrelly of Normandy Lists Assets of $1647, Including Two Bird Dogs.

Florida business ventures apparently wrecked the fortune of John J. Farrelly, a printer of Normandy, who filed voluntary petition in bankruptcy in Federal court today listing liabilities of $81,049 and assets of only $1647, of which he says $1200 is questionable.

His largest individual creditors are Edward J. Walsh of 4219 Westminster place, who holds his note for $12,000, and John S. Edgett of 262 North Taylor avenue, who lent him $15,000. Two Miami banks hold notes of $2500 each. The other liabilities include a telephone bill in Miami, a large number of small indebtedness to individuals residing in Florida and bills owed for supplies.

He lists $200 in stocks and bonds, $147 in personal property including two guns and $100 in two bird dogs, a pointer and a setter.

Kuk, a native of Austria-Hungary, obtained his first papers preliminary to citizenship in 1916, but when the United States entered the World War, avoided army service by declining to renounce allegiance to his old country. In 1920 he sought final papers, but the Government threatened to deport him because the allegation he was a dangerous alien and was secretary of the East St. Louis branch of the Yugoslav Communist party.

This proceeding was dropped, but a decree was entered in the East St. Louis City Court forever barring him from citizenship. Last March this order was set aside. In same court, today, Judge Borah granted Kuk his long-sought papers, saying Kuk had been a good resident and had changed his political belief. The Judge thought change of heart entitled Kuk to citizenship, but Immigration Examiner Coles announced the intention to appeal.

BANKRUPT PRINTER ADMITS LIABILITIES OF $81,049

John J. Farrelly of Normandy Lists Assets of $1647, Including Two Bird Dogs.

Florida business ventures apparently wrecked the fortunes of John J. Farrelly, a printer of Normandy, who filed voluntary petition in bankruptcy in Federal court today listing liabilities of $81,049 and assets of only $1647, which he says $1200 is questionable.

His largest individual creditors are Edward J. Walsh of 4249 Westminster place, who holds his note for $13,000, and John S. Smith of 252 North Taylor avenue, who lent him $15,000. Two Miami banks hold notes of $3600 and $500. The other liabilities include a telephone bill in Miami, large number of small indebtedness to individuals residing in Florida and bills owed for supplies.

He lists $200 in stocks and bonds and $147 in personal property including two guns, and $100 on two bird dogs, a pointer and a cat.

ELECTRIC COOKING IS POPULAR IN ST. LOUIS

ELECTRICITY is so cheap in St. Louis and lends itself so efficiently and economically to the preparation of food, that the St. Louis caterers and restaurant operators are turning more and more to electric cooking. . . . Electric ovens for heavy duty baking, roasting, etc. have been installed in many St. Louis restaurants, others have adopted the lighter equipment and several have adopted both kinds. Here are a few of the popular down town restaurants that feature electrical equipment for their lighter cooking.

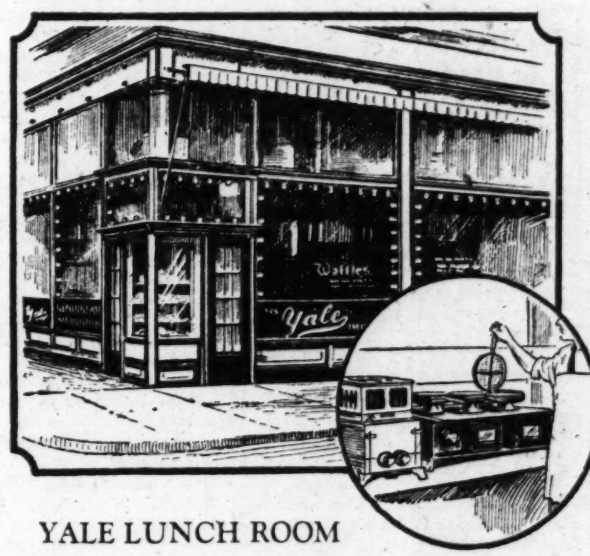

BENISH RESTAURANT
Olive at "ATE" Street

Here, and in other Benish restaurants, delicious waffles, toast, etc. are made electrically. These are "headliners" among good things to eat; made electrically, their high quality is maintained day after day.

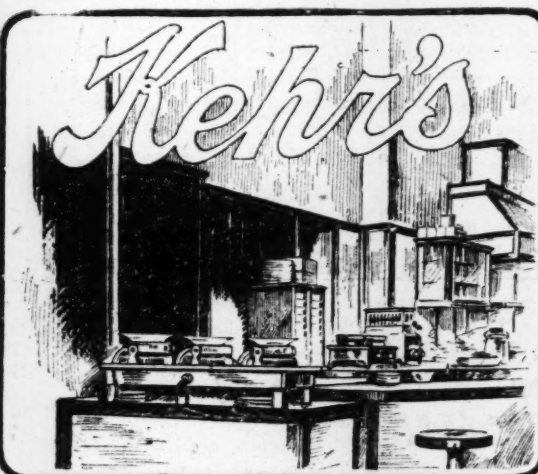

The MAYFAIR HOTEL Coffee Shop

The electric griddle, toaster and waffle irons here operate efficiently and economically day and night. The service of the Coffee Shop is of that same high character which marks the Mayfair as a leading St. Louis hotel. The waffle irons have cooked approximately 200,000 waffles since August 1925.

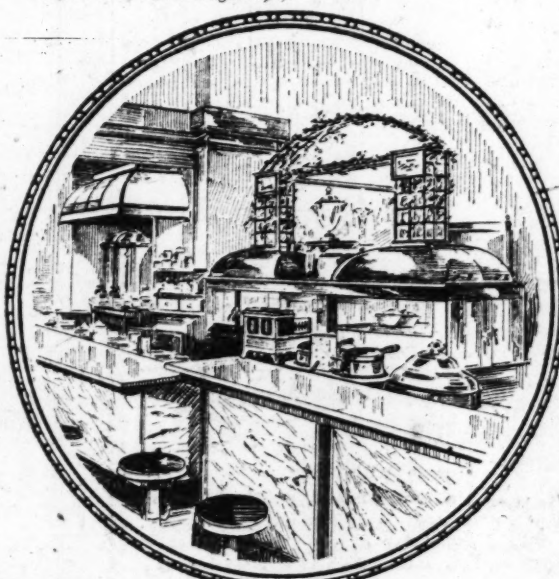

YALE LUNCH ROOM

Popular "Yale" Waffles and Toasted Sandwiches are prepared electrically because fine flavor finds favor with Yale patrons. Electrically prepared food retains the natural flavor which makes all foods more appetizing.

KEHR'S RESTAURANT

Where good food quickly is the prime function. Kehr's specializes in waffles and toasted sandwiches—to insure speed and delicious taste these are prepared electrically, of course.

AMERICAN HOTEL AND ANNEX

Delicious "Electric" waffles and "Electric" toast are featured daily for the many patrons of the American and "Annex" Coffee Shops. The fine pastries, another culinary art for which these hotels are popular, are cooked in great electric ovens.

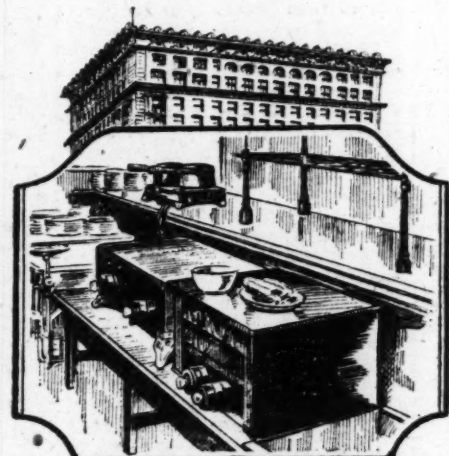

B-G SANDWICH SHOPS

From Coast to Coast the B-G Shops serve toasted sandwiches, fragrant coffee. Every shop is completely equipped with electric toasters and an imposing array of electric percolators—the thousands who lunch and dine each day in these shops attest the quality of the electrically prepared toasted sandwiches and coffee.

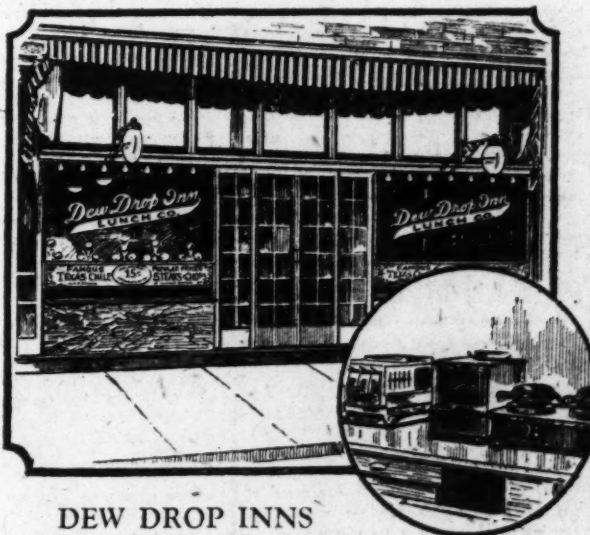

MARYLAND HOTEL CAFETERIA

"Maryland" Sandwiches and Waffles are cooked electrically. All pastries, etc. are baked in electric ovens—that is why the "Maryland" is famed for good food.

JEFFERSON HOTEL Coffee Shop

For 7 years the Electric Griddle and Toaster shown here have prepared delicious morsels to satisfy the appetites of thousands who patronize this well-known Coffee Shop.

DEW DROP INNS

Good food can be served quickly with the aid of electric cooking appliances. That is why eight of these popular restaurants serve the public with electrically prepared toast and waffles.

These restaurants and many others in St. Louis have discovered that electric cooking provides better food, prepared more easily and more economically; that it improves the standards of cleanliness and efficiency.

TO QUIT

JOHNSTON URGED TO COMPETE IN DAVIS CUP PLAY

"Little Bill" Enthusiastic Over Proposition Made by California Tennis Association.

By the Associated Press.
SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 13.—
William M. "Little Bill" Johnston, one of America's mightiest racquetballers for 15 years, is recommending his previous decision of not playing in Davis Cup tennis competition again.

The little court general who twice held the national singles title and for seven years was one of the mainstays of the American Davis Cup team, has been urged by the California Tennis Association to play in Davis Cup tennis competition again.

The proposition has been put up to Johnston in this way—help
the United States win the zone play, then let the youngsters go to Europe where perhaps William Tilden and Francis Hunter will be able to carry on.

At a meeting yesterday of the Association, Johnston was enthusiastic over the idea, but gave no definite reply. Inability to take sufficient time from business is his biggest problem.

MANDELL TO MEET
PETROLLE TONIGHT IN NON-TITLE FIGHT

By the Associated Press.
MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Jan. 13.— Sammy Mandell, lightweight champion, will meet Billy Petrolle of Duluth, known as the "Fargo Express," in a 10-round no-decision match tonight. Mandell's title will not be at stake, even in the event of a knockout, since the men will weigh two pounds over the lightweight limit.

Mandell expects to win because of his speed and his ability to shoot accurate punches to vital spots.
Petrolle, on the other hand, has been pictured as a "Miniature Jack Dempsy"—a two-fisted fighter, who is fast on his feet and his hard with either hand.

Promoters expect the bout to draw about 14,000 persons, a record for this city.

Remember, Sharkey can take as much punishment as Heenev. And he can give a whole lot more.
Sharkey is the harder, surer hitter.
He is the faster hitter and the faster man. When it comes to strength, perhaps they are equal. Their measurements show them to be almost the same weight. There's only a slight advantage in Heenev's favor.

Sharkey offsets this with advantages in height and reach.
Heenev is chunkier, but Sharkey is more the boxer build. As a matter of fact, it looks to me as if it is merely a question of how much punishment Heenev can take in the 12 rounds.

Heenev is no Dempsey when it comes to punching, not by a long shot. And as Heenev has been training his blows for the head, it is reasonable to believe he won't entirely change his tactics in the actual battle and confine his attack to the body.

Heenev Always Trying.
Even Dempsey's faster and harder punches didn't dent Sharkey's head or jaw until Dempsey had brought Sharkey's hands down to his sides with body punches.
And Dempsey landed that last left hook to the Boston man's jaw when Sharkey was making absolutely no attempt to defend himself against the blow.

On the other hand, Sharkey will find that he has no Jim Maloney against him when he faces Heenev.
Rather, he'll be fighting a smart fellow who'll always be coming in and trying. Tom will keep Sharkey busy all the time. Jack will earn soon enough that he has a real fighting machine before him.

Heenev told me he'd rather have the bout 15 rounds than 12. Tom's a long distance fighter. He generally gets better as he goes along.

I expect to see Jack Sharkey put up one of his best battles, for he'll be in there trying to prove his right to a fight with Gene Tunney.
He perhaps another shot at Jack Dempsey.

Sharkey Rules Favorite.
By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Making his first ring start since being knocked horizontal by Jack Dempsey last summer, Jack Sharkey from Boston is a favorite over Tom Heenev although many boxing followers are cautiously withholding opinions. Sharkey is expected to be the choice by 2½ to 1 when he steps into the arena at 10 o'clock for the prospect of punching his way into a championship affair with Gene Tunney.

Tex Rickard hopes to match the winner against Tunney but he has announced that his decision will depend on the showing of the bat-tlers.

Physicians said that Sharkey was in fine condition, even better, than when he faced Jim Maloney and Dempsey.

Trade Winds.

We'll give them Chester Falk for Ruth

And throw the shin-guards in to

To show there's no ill feeling.

Super Swapping.
Phil Ball started something when he traded Milt Gaston for McNeely and Coffman. The epidemic is spreading and our advice to the bird who is down to his last thin dime is to hold on to it. Somebody is liable to come along and give him a $20 gold piece for it.

Instead of trading on a basis of a Roland for an Oliver, the latest system is a grand plan for a jewishman, or what have you?

Incidentally, if Francois Hogan and Jimmy Welsh insist on salaries commensurate with their importance, they'll split about 40,000 berries between them.

Fuchs says he was after another player and got Hornsby. In other words, he was fishing for small fry and caught a whale.

It will be noted that John Mc-Graw was on his way to Havana when the news of the Hornsby trade broke. John knows when to stand from under.

The explaining was left to Charles Stoneham, whose explaining was of a very busy league character. Charles will never be a .300 explainer in any man's league.

Johnny Ogden, recently purchased by the Browns, says he is glad to get a chance with a major league team. Thanks for the compliment, Johnny.

Somehow we feel that we are going to like that young feller.
We know we will if he doesn't win too many games and become trading material.

"Bobby Jones Named Director of Bank."

That'll be all right if the Board of Ethics doesn't object to a hook-up between the long green and putting green.

See where Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig accounted for 646 of the Yankees' 975 runs. What'll you take for 'em, Hug?

George Von Elm says he would rather defeat Bobby Jones for the amateur title than receive a million dollars as a professional. Fat chance, either way, we call it.

Joe Stecher and Ed Lewis, with a $25 top, will have to steam up a bit to outdraw Bill Sunday with a free gate.

SEAVIEW REX WINS
DOG FIELD EVENT

GRAND JUNCTION, Tenn., Jan.
13.—Coming up from the rear in a race that seemed almost hopeless when the running closed Wednesday, Seaview Rex, hero of many battles over these fields at Grand Junction, won first place in the all-age stage of the United States bird dog trials in one of the most brilliant performances of his career here yesterday.

The race was replete with sensational work on birds and marvelous ground work. Trailing behind, but scarcely a close competitor was the other setter, Halworth's Kate, owned by T. P. Herberich of Saginaw, Mich., and handled by C. B.
Black of Stanton, Tenn., while third place was awarded to the pointer Eagle Peris, owned by Frank Kidwell of Washington, D.
C., handled by Ed Farrier of Union Springs, Ala. There were 24 starters in the stake.

Hockey Teams in Tie.
NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—The New

a National League Hockey contest.
Goals by Eddie Shore and Harry Oliver in the closing minutes of the regular play forced the game into overtime which ended without breaking the deadlock. Murdock and Boucher were responsible for the Rangers' score.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Jack Sharkey will beat Tom Heenev, the Australian, in the heavyweight championship bout in Madison Square Garden tonight. That's my conclusion after watching the men training.

Heenev's greater speed,
more accurate hitting and superior boxing ability will carry him through to victory. I think what Sharkey has in these departments will more than offset the aggressive and dogged, relentless attack of his opponent.

While I don't look especially for a knockout, I do expect a knockdown, probably early in the fight. And I believe Sharkey will be the one to score. I'll go even farther: I expect to see Sharkey drop his man with a left hook to the jaw. Now, then, that's my tip-off to Heenev.
Let him make the best of it.

I like Tom Heenev, and I like the men handling him. I'd like to see him win. But I don't think it's on the cards. There are those who think Heenev's great heart, coupled with his ability to "take it" will win for him. I doubt it.

Can Take Punishment.
Remember, Sharkey can take as

Coffroth Declares That He Handled Bets on All Bouts
He Promoted in California

Declares That He Did This in an Effort to Keep Fight Game Clean—Only One Effort Was Made to Put Something Over, He Writes.

NO. 10.
By James W. Coffroth.

(Copyright, 1928.)

IN THIS era it's considered a bit unethical and rather foolhardy to bet on the outcome of ring battles. Whatever wagering is done is "under cover." But in my day, betting on fights at the ringside was as much a part of the sport as is betting on horses at a race track.

All the fight arenas in California had authorized betting commissioners on the grounds, or the commissioners were within easy reach of all fight patrons.

Very soon after I started promoting in San Francisco, I took over all of the betting commissioners' shops and controlled them books that handled bets on fights held in my arenas. Many folks might have felt that I did this so that I might keep the percentage for myself.
But any such conclusion was an injustice to me.

The reason that I took over control of all the books that handled bets on fights I held was that I would know whether anything cooked was being attempted in the bouts. For if there is anything that acts like a pulse governing the honesty and the regularity of a boxing bout, it is the gambling that is being done on it.

Whether there had been a "frame" or not, I never could establish definitely. I heard after the fight, that many gamblers who had bet big money on Kaufman were yelling something about being "double-crossed."

But I do know that those boys stood out there that afternoon and thought for 25 rounds—and fought to the best they knew how —and that, in the end, the referee called a draw.

GHNOULY, FLOORED THREE TIMES, LOSES IN INTERCITY CONTEST

BROWN'S FIRST ROUND ATTACK NETS VICTORY

Power and Doetzel Score Over Cincinnati Rivals Before Packed House at South Broadway.

By Damon Kerby.

St. Louis boxers won two of the three intercity bouts from Cincinnati fighters at the South Broadway A. C. club last night in a program that kept a capacity crowd in a constant uproar from the first preliminary to the final event. The last bout furnished the big surprise of the program, Joe Ghnoully losing to a big Johnny Brown in a bout that proved the smashing climax of the evening.

Doetzel Beats O'Connell. Little Clifford Doetzel, 112-pound flash of the South Broadway A. C., fought in his usual whirlwind style to gain a verdict over Harold O'Connell, a battler of no mean parts himself, in the other intercity affair.

The fighting heart of the visitor was shown early in the first round, when, after Doetzel had worked him into a corner with a series of one-two punches to the head, he exchanged blow for blow to fight his way out into the center of the ring. His main thrust was an overhead right to the jaw, but it seemed to have little effect in showing up the St. Louis boxer.

In a bout that was no less interesting than the feature attractions, Gus Maytas, of the South Broadway A. C., was given a point decision over Louis Bourdel, Cincinnati, three rounds, judges' decision. Weight, 118 pounds.

The pair engaged in a slugfest match throughout. Both were too rugged to go down for the count, but the pace was so hot that just before the bout ended

YALE OFFICIALS ARE IN FAVOR OF "NON SCOUTING"

Athletic Body at Old Eli Asks Opponents for Next Season to Again Observe Agreement.

By the Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 12.—The board of control of the Yale Athletic Association has asked institutions on Yale's football schedule for next fall to observe again the non-scouting agreement of the past season.

The vote of the board on the matter expresses appreciation of the generous and hearty co-operation of other colleges in playing football games without resort to "organized scouting." It says: "We feel that both game and players have benefited by the added tests of the initiative, self-reliance, and resourcefulness of the teams in action, and that the sport itself has gained by lessening the machinery."

Fight Card Completed. CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—From his sick bed, Promoter Jim Mullon last night completed his card of four 10-round bouts for the Coliseum, Jan. 20, with Eddie Shea, Chicago featherweight engaging Ignacio Fernandez of the Philippine Islands in the main event.

ed, the pair gave a fair imitation of a slow-motion picture, so tired were they from previous efforts. The decision in Maytas' favor incurred the displeasure of the fans, and the judges went into a second consultation, but the initial verdict stood.

Customers Turned Away. More than 200 cash customers were turned away after the hall had been filled, according to Matchmaker Willie Miller. The fans present were repaid with a show filled with action from the first until the final gong.

STOCKHOLDERS' MEETING
Notice is hereby given that the meeting of the stockholders of the Publishing Co. will be held at the office of the company, Twelfth boulevard at the corner of the City of St. Louis, Mo., on Monday, Jan. 6, 1925, at 9 o'clock in the forenoon, for the purpose of electing a board of directors and the transaction of such other business as may come before the meeting.

JAMES L. BARNGROVE URGES TRAFFIC PLAN

Head of Real Estate Exchange
Favors Rapid Transit
Bond Issue.

Passage of the proposed $50,000,000 bond issue for a double-deck north and south traffic artery to run along the river front, and further issues for rapid transit and an outer park system, were urged last night by James L. Barngrove, newly elected president of the Real Estate Exchange, at the organization's annual banquet and installation of officers at Hotel Stadler. Barngrove and other new officers were formally installed.

St. Louis, because of its progressiveness and its location as the gateway to the Southwest, is the most favored city in the nation insofar as development of the next few years is concerned, Barngrove said. He pointed out the increasing growth and purchasing power of the territory served by the city and said this would cause future expansion of St. Louis to be as rapid as was the growth of Chicago during the years following the Civil War.

Although 1928 will be a presidential election year, Barngrove does not expect this will have any untoward effect on business, as has been true in some former presidential election years. The reorganization of the Chamber of Commerce, establishment of the Industrial Club and program of improvement by the city under the Bond Issue would make for a good year in the real estate business, Barngrove declared.

E. J. Russell, chairman of the City Plan Commission, who also spoke, said real estate men generally should be the most diligent workers in helping the commission. Officers besides President Barngrove who were installed are: Vice presidents, Charles J. Daly and Louis F. Yeckel; treasurer, William L. Cady; and executive secretary, Clarence C. Lang. The new directors of the exchange are W. J. Abbott, W. W. Butts, W. R. Cady, W. E. Caulfield, Daly, Isaac

A. Hedges, Edward L. Kuhs, W. H. Proetz, W. L. Proetzmann, Alfred D. Ruth, C. M. Turley and Yeckel.

Bellefonte Bank Officers Chosen.
The First National Bank of Bellefonte has elected officers for the new year as follows: George B. Rogers, president; Cyrus Thompson and Adolph Knobloch, vice presidents; Phil Gass, cashier; Ernest Gass, assistant cashier, and C. A. Heiligenstein, trust officer. These, with David Baer, George E. Baker, W. J. Fischer, Victor Gauss, William Kloess, Dr. C. J. Starckel and J. J. Weingaertner constitute the board of directors.

Try This For Rheumatic Agony and Pain Tormented Joints

If you have a swollen, inflamed or pain tormented joint don't keep on suffering agony day after day.

For quick, comforting relief thousands rub on Joint-Ease, and for Rheumatic pain druggists will tell you that it is always in demand.

Joint-Ease is a soothing, penetrating emollient that you can rub on often to obtain speedy results.

Its comforting influence and speedy action indicate its use for such ailments as chest colds, neuralgia, neuritis, lameness, sore, aching muscles, lumbago and sciatica.

For feet that are inflamed and burn and ache a good rubbing at night with Joint-Ease usually means foot comfort in the morning.

Ask for Joint-Ease at any drug store in America—60 cents a tube—rub it in—it penetrates.

FREE Send name and address for large, generous 12-day trial tube to Pope Laboratories, Dept. 2, Hallowell, Maine.

Joint-Ease

There is no substitute for Joint-Ease — the dealer who offers you something else, not only insults your intelligence, but is unworthy of your confidence.

TIPS FOR MAN TAMERS

By Helen Rowland.

WHY MEN COME HOME.
"WHY girls leave home" has never been such a baffling question as why men COME HOME. And keep right on coming home, day after day and year after year!

What is it that keeps the average tame husband moving like a shuttle between his wife and his stenographer—and back to his wife?

Well, most of them come home because of force of habit. It becomes a purely mechanical process, and relieves a man of the mental exertion of thinking of something ELSE to do.

Lots of men come home because, at the end of a hard day at the office they are too TIRED to go anywhere else. Home is the logical place in which to relax and "be yourself." It is the only place where a man can take off his manners with his office coat and be as grouchy, as nervous or as irritable as he feels. It takes all a woman's tact and wheedling to persuade a really "tired business man" to take his mental and physical fatigue anywhere BUT "home!"

ALL men come home when they are ailing or feeling seedy. That is one time in every married man's life when home looks to him more like a goal, than a goal, and when he can't get there quickly enough.

When a man is sick, the only thing on earth he is interested in is his "symptoms," and hurrying to a place where he can curl down amongst the pillows and have somebody hold his hand, take his temperature, and help him feel sorry for himself.

Some men check in at the same old stand, pretty regularly, for self-protection.

There is no safeguard like a wife to defend a man against the importunities of other women. A bachelor has no excuse; but the man who can say, "There, there, little girl! The wife is expecting me home," has an iron-clad, tear-proof alibi, which keeps him from constantly being "misunderstood."

A few men come home out of curiosity—to see what the WIFE is doing. To the average man, the great mystery of life is "what a woman does with her time all day." And if a man happens to be of a jealous disposition, his wife's life struggle is not to keep him coming home, but to keep him from hanging around the house all day.

Of course, there will be some cynical wives, who will be amazed to learn that there ARE any husbands who DO come home, every evening.

But, you'd be surprised! The world is full of them! Dear, patient, plodding, hard-worked husbands, who would as soon think of committing harri-kari or of wearing their coats wrong-side-out as of not going straight home from the office. Try and STOP them!

ETIQUETTE

By Katherine de Peyster.

DEAR MISS DE PEYSTER:
 I am getting married soon, at 11 in the morning, quietly, and would like to know whether I should wear gloves in church, what kind of color. My dress will be blue, and I shall wear tan slippers and stockings and a pretty hat.

Also please tell me whether it is proper to carry an arm bouquet or to wear flowers and how.

BRIDE-TO-BE.

1. With the informal costume that you outlined, I advise you not to wear gloves. Gloves are to emphasize formality, and would not look appropriate with an informal attire. They would be in your way, too, and I am sure that you will be relieved that you need not wear them.

2. The kind of bouquet that you decide to have and whether you carry it or wear it depends entirely on your own wish and choice. Anything is correct, since the bride's flowers should be what she wishes to have them. You may have the shower bouquet that is associated with brides, although it would not be so large as if you were dressing formally. Or you may have the more informal arm bouquet, composed of your favorite flowers, yellow roses, for instance.

Or, if you think that it would be more appropriate (and it usually seems so) to wear with your informal costume, a lovely corsage, plan to do this. For instance, have one or two or three light-colored orchids (light green ones or very light yellow ones or white ones) combined with two or three gardenias. This makes one of the loveliest of corsage bouquets, I think, and can be more delicate-looking, as a bride's bouquet should be. Or you might have only gardenias—always gloriously effective. Or perhaps you would like small, exquisite, pink sweetheart roses (a charming significance for the bride bouquet) combined with lilies-of-the-valley. Or small yellow roses and lilies of the valley.

Dear Miss de Peyster:

1. Please state the correct way to introduce, first, one girl to another, and second, a girl to a fellow.

2. Also in taking leave of a person you have just been introduced to, what is the correct thing to say?

DOUBTFUL.
 1. When you introduce one girl to another, it is usually enough to mention only the names: "Miss March, Miss Moulton." Or, if you wish, you may say, "Miss March, do you know Miss Moulton?" Or, "Miss March, this is Miss Moulton." Or, "Miss March, may I introduce Miss Moulton?"

The second part of your question needs a bit of correction, for you introduce a man (not a "fellow," by the way) to a girl, not a girl to a man. And when you make this introduction, the very best form to use, I think, is "Miss March, may I present Mr. Worthington?" or, "Miss March, may I introduce Mr. Worthington?" If you wish the inroduction to be a bit more casual, it is perfectly proper for you to mention only the names: "Miss March, Mr. Worthington."

2. Unless you wish to express especial enthusiasm, you simply say "Good-by," or, if you have the name correctly, "Good-by, Mrs. Allen." If the meeting has been casual, and you are being polite, but not necessarily enthusiastic, you merely bow as you say good-by. If you wish to be a bit more cordial in your leave-taking, you shake hands as you say good-by. This is all that is expected by people who are used to introductions, and have no special interest in casual introductions.

But, if the introduction really is more important, and has a significance of some special kind, then it is polite to say, "I am so glad to have met you," or "Good-by, I am most happy to have met you," or "Good-by, I hope that I shall see you again sometime (or 'soon')," or "It has been such a pleasure to meet you this afternoon, and I hope that I am to renew that pleasure soon."

Novel Inventions

An Illinois inventor's cigar lighter resembles a telephone, lifting a miniature receiver from a hook turning on gas that is automatically lighted within it.

To protect men who apply paint by spraying from poisonous fumes a gas mask has been designed that utilizes air pressure from the line to the paint nozzle.

A new lamp to ornament the front of an automobile is revolved by vanes as a car moves, causing spots of light of various colors to shine forth.

A New York State scientist claims to have developed a process with which garments can be electrified with rubber to make them waterproof.

Having but a small outlet, a drinking glass has been invented for use on trains without danger of spilling its contents.

CHIC CHERIE

Our Three Little Friends Again

One crowded day of glorious life is what Cherie is going to get now or die in the attempt. She started in with the toboggans. And she started in with this jacket and these breeches of suede (green), a cap of krummer (with earflaps) and stockings and gloves that match by being decorated with all the colors there are anywhere.

After the toboggans, ski. Cherie thought a stocking cap and stockings to match more appropriate for this. Her sweater is white wool with a yoke that matches the chief color of her cap, and the skirt is white wool to match the sweater. Neither of them is whiter than the snow or than Cherie's complexion would be if she looked as she feels.

She was quite right about that gone feeling inside her when she started down the hill. People usually are. She isn't even getting human sympathy from this charming young woman in the sweater with the turtle neck. An unusually long sweater, if you'll notice, with plain sleeve to contrast to the figured material of the rest of it.

Cherie wasn't left quite alone to help herself out of the snow bank. Because who should come gallumphing up but Ernest and Eustace and Edwin, who are evidently here for that very purpose. That's why the lady in the tweed-lined scarlet capeskin jacket, who intended to help, turns her back and goes rapidly in the other direction.

Retiring City Matron
Given Purse of $8000

AFTER 27 years' service as public matron in Minneapolis Mrs. Sarah Schaeffer has retired, and she was held in such esteem that she took with her an $8000 publicly subscribed fund.

Minneapolis' leading citizens attended a testimonial dinner in her honor, when the purse was presented.

Mrs. Schaeffer estimated that in her years of service among the city's unfortunates she came in contact with 50,000 persons, mainly young girls, whose personal stories she heard. In all the years, she said, she never violated a confidence.

For the South.

The twin sister of the boyish bathing suit is of jersey, with a top of yellow and green stripes, and the usual trunks covered by a very brief skirt of green. It is as modern as three new furniture.

Literary Geisha
Has Big Library

THE geisha girls of Japan are not all a frivolous lot. The vernacular newspapers have discovered that Miss Utako Hanazono, a star of the singing and dancing profession, owns a library of about 5000 volumes.

Miss Hanazono is known as the "scholar geisha" and is widely envied by her more or less unread sisters. She is said to possess a collection of writings on the geisha, profession second to none in the empire.

She herself has written two books entitled "Sea Anemone" and "The Woman Cry," which have attained considerable circulation. Both are in defense of the geisha.

There are about 5000 licensed taxicabs in the London metropolitan area, and no one has power to prevent the number increasing indefinitely.

Palm Beach Provides Women's Sun Perch

WILL the now famous sun baths prove popular with women at the Breakers Casino, one of the most conservative of bathing places, where even stockings are compulsory?

Men bathers have used an alligator pen on the south end of the Casino roof for years and so popular has the habit become that the space has been doubled. Now a sun perch has been added for the women.

At the Bath and Tennis club, the women's sun pen has been in highest favor.

HIDING under the hide bright plaid kasha lines dark leather jackets. These double-breasted hip-length coats of dark brown, navy, purple or black are lined in gay plaids that have backgrounds corresponding to the tone of the leather. Other models, in the bright sport shades have kasha lining of self color. Although the majority of leather coats are in jacket style, some full-length ones are being worn, but these are in single-breasted styles.

Badger becomes badge of smartness for this soft flatterer fur strikes one of the most recent fashion notes in the trimming of the daytime coat of black cloth. Its light natural colorings offset the somber black wraps that are worn by so many smartly dressed women.

"Adding a feather to your cap" has always been expressive of achievement. Now, this is an actual fact, for the latest French felt sports hats have pairs of saucy quills, placed at most rakish angles.

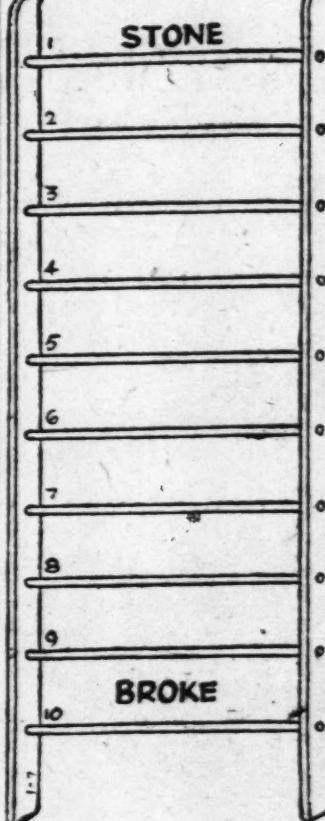

Mating purse and necklace is the latest rage. Black velvet or antique envelope purses have a metallic border of a slender gold vine, which is matched in the leaflike garland that forms a choker. Bracelets and earrings to match are often used to complete the ensemble.

"Wear yellow—catch a fellow" is an old-time adage to girls, and it seems to be taken seriously this season, as yellow is the predominant color theme of the latest youthful frocks. From greenish tones to old gold, this color is seen in many variations.

A stitch in time is valuable beyond dispute, but not to be disputed is the smartness of the hundreds of timely stitches that form the lines and stripes used as the sole trimming on many of the smartest costume blouses. The stitching is of heavy silk in a contrasting shade, or in metallic thread.

Glass grape furniture is one of the latest novelties in adorning evening slippers. A bunch of translucent grapes, in realistic purple and green coloring, is placed at the side of the slipper, so as to hide the strap fastening.

Practical Pointers

A good-looking collar and cuff set will rejuvenate the slightly-worn frock.

A splendid furniture polish can be made at home by combining three parts linseed oil with one part turpentine.

Reign of Red
In the Kitchen

THE red kitchen is an established fact, and it can be the reddest one imaginable if the owner's mind favors the color. First, in planning the red kitchen the walls may be painted a dove gray with a cream ceiling. The woodwork in the walls, trimmings deeper than the walls, trimmed with red, or stenciled with red motifs in arabesques, or in single proportions.

On the floor a plaid linoleum can be used with dark blocks in the two shades of gray. Or a gray block and a mottled linoleum can be used. For window curtains white with red stripes and polka dots for the glass curtain.

The same red and white linoleum can be used on tablecloths unless they have porcelain tops. The furniture should be painted gray with as much red as is liked. The red may be added by stenciling or hand painting to the home artist.

In one corner build in a light red peasant cupboard. They are new to American kitchens and most attractive. The shelves below are concealed with doors. There is an open space for the kitchen dishes, the curving shelves with hooks for hanging cups and saucers to hold kitchen spoons and forks in along the front edge of the shelves. The fronts of the doors may be decorated by painting or stenciling flowers in natural colors, and red, blue, green, yellow and black lines may form the rest of the decoration. On the shelves peasant china may be displayed. This pottery is charming and does not cost any more for kitchen use than the plain domestic stuff.

The pitchers and bowls are in attractive shapes and the cups as they may be by their red handles most decorative. The other plates and dishes stand upright in grooves at the back of the shelves. Poppet, egg cups, serving dishes and bowls find resting places on the colorful shelves.

Now we come to the most interesting part of the story and that is the enameled ware, white, red, blue, and black. At first it is a shock to us who are a bit conservative about our kitchen ware, but it is highly decorative and as red and colorful as it can be made. A red dishpan, for instance, is at least a cheerful object and on a cold day warms the cheeks of one's hands.

THE WAY
—OF—
A WOMAN—By—Marguerite Moores Marshall

GIVE US A CHANCE.
WOMAN gets fed up with love-making.

"She doesn't want it all the time."
 So the Baroness Reinach de Werth, formerly Miss Helen R. Tennyson, American girl, infamous for her countrymen.

"Too much love kills Americans as well as Europeans."
 So the famous surgeon, Dr. Adolph Lorenz, warns us.

The woman wonders if they can possibly be right.
 And if, anyhow, propaganda for love-making is needed.

In a country like America, where the average man is a decidedly imperfect lover!

He is n. y. nice things to his "I love you!"

Generous, loyal, hard-working, considerate, fair-minded—

But he could be a much greater romantic success than he is!

Take the most beautiful phrase in the English language, "I love you!"

These are words which the American male is reluctant to utter.

He shies away from "I love you!"

Or, even more often, he keeps silence.

On the assumption that "she ought to know I love her."

To gods! Even if she does know it!

Do you suppose she ever gets tired of hearing it?

We agree with Sophie Kerr, the famous novelist.

Who ever told us that she thought few marriages would fall if every day, the husband and the wife

Made each other that simple confession of faith, "I love you!"

Yet a woman seldom can woo the admission in words.

Even from the husband who by act shows himself entirely devoted.

"Do you love me?" she asks gaily, or hopefully, or wistfully.

And the best he can do for her is "Of course!"

Then there are the other gracious gestures of love-making.

In courtship and in marriage: How many men know how to give flowers to the beloved woman—

Not large, expensive boxes of flowers chosen by the lover for romantic, individual associations?

How many men are sufficiently good to notice what she wears. And to praise it intelligently? How many men make love cleverly enough?

"Do you love me?" she asks gaily, or hopefully, or wistfully.

And the best he can do for her is "Of course."

Then there are the other gracious gestures of love-making. In courtship and in marriage: How many men know how to give flowers to the beloved woman?

Not large, expensive boxes of flowers.

But flowers chosen by the lover for romantic, individual associations?

How many men are sufficiently good lovers

To notice what she wears.

And to praise it intelligently?

How many men make love cleverly enough

To pay a woman beautiful and subtle compliments.

Appreciation that is more than the starchy rubber stamp of a popular "line."

How many American lovers never neglect the small courtesies?

How many can contrive to give the subject of their devotion

The feeling that she is the only person of whose existence they are really conscious?

Oh, yes, it can be done—

But the American man rarely ever tries to do it.

What young man hereabout knows how to make love by letter?

Sometimes, of course, he retains from motives of discretion.

But even when he writes a love-letter.

He puts out such an awfully crude effort!

Why did Rudolph Valentino—why does Ramon Novarro—so ardent maids, wives and widows all over the U. S. A.?

Simply because these are the Great Lovers

Of whom the American woman dreams.

And whom she never finds—OUT-SIDE dream!

Maybe there are women somewhere who "get fed up on love-making."

Who "don't want it all the time."

But American women never get enough of it.

Or get it long enough!

Maybe "too much love is bad"—

American women never have the chance to find out!

Maybe "too much love kills Americans as well as Europeans."

But personally we think Americans are perfectly safe

So long as American men continue to score Grade Q in romance!

Alas, according to the London Institute of Hygiene, is the warmest line of argument, but the flappers discovered that several winters ago.

THE MAIDEN'S PRAYER.

When I was a young girl I often sat a-dreaming Of the young Lancelot who Would ardently woo me And now that I'm grown old I find me Dreaming of a young Lancelot whom I saw on a grimy, muddy field Play football for the honor of his Alma mater.

He sweeps past my vision, and is told By the opposing team.

He is carried off bearing the Pain of a broken leg and is Gently grateful for the Cheers.

Oh me! my latest dream is When met fiddle the first. For now all femininity doth High and pine for my Football hero.

Oh me!

WHEN DIPLOMATIC SOCIETY DARNED SOCKS AT A PARTY

Widow of Danish Envoy Recalls Other Occasions, Not So Domestic, When the Necks of Champagne Bottles Were Broken on Table Edges.

By Axel Gerfalk.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark.

GUESTS at brilliant diplomatic parties darning socks and breaking the necks of champagne bottles on tables are some of the memories Mme. Lillie de Hegermann-Lindencrone has of Washington.

Mme. de Hegermann-Lindencrone, American born widow of a famous Danish diplomat and herself at the time of the third Napoleon one of the most famous women in Europe, is 84 years old. She formerly was Miss Lillie Greenough of Cambridge, Mass., where she lived with her grandfather, Judge Fay, in a mansion now the property of Radcliffe College.

"Mais enfin, let me then shake you a cock-tail of some of my experiences," said the grand old dame, when asked about social life during the 55 to 40 years she was an Ambassador's wife.

"First," she admonished, as she lighted a cigarette, "you must bear in mind that what I experienced belonged to a period which in the true sense of the word represents the past."

"Not a few of the so-called brilliant social events of my time were very brilliant, but very formal and deadly dull. But many of them were wonderful affairs, sparkling not only of wonderful gowns and jewels, but of true wit and beaming happiness."

"I HAVE experienced many truly quaint affairs. Once in the Russian embassy in Washington at a dinner in honor of the Grand Duke Constantine, all the guests did nothing but darn stockings. That sounds mysterious, does it not? Count Shishin, the Ambassador, had just bought a darning machine, the first of its kind, and he was so enthusiastic about his purchase that after the splendid dinner he had given us he produced the machine and demonstrated it to us."

"Everyone was enraptured by it, and everybody tried his or her hand at it. None of us had stockings with holes in them, so we had to punch holes in our stockings to get an opportunity of using the darning machine. The Grand Duke was so fascinated by the machine that he then and there ordered the Ambassador to purchase another machine and have it dispatched to his imperial mother, the Czarina.

"The quantity of food, liquid or otherwise, consumed at American affairs at that time was simply colossal. I distinctly remember a so-called champagne tea at the Capital with oceans of champagne and cocktails, but that was a long, long time before anybody dreamed of prohibition."

"I also remember a most extraordinary entertainment in the Mexican Minister's apartment. At least four times as many guests were invited as the apartment could hold. What a crush! And the manners displayed!"

"BUFFETS were strolled in the roughest way. Chairs were used as tables, wine and food were all over the floor. I saw 'gentlemen' open champagne bottles by knocking off the necks of the bottles on the edge of the table. Guests filled their pockets with chocolates and bon-bons, and the ladies drew out silver-sticks adorning the viands and put them in their hair as a souvenir of a surely unforgettable evening. That affair took place in 1875, but I remember it as well yesterday."

"My husband and I became great friends with the King of Sweden, the late Oscar II, one of the finest and most handsome men I ever met. The day we were leaving Stockholm to take up another diplomatic post, and actually two hours before the departure of our train, and all our furniture was packed and at the railway station, we were informed that the King would be calling on us in person. There we were in an apartment stripped of everything. Fortunately, in the apartment above lived another diplomat and friend of us, and in next to no time part of his furniture, curtains and carpets were rushed into our bare apartment, and before the King passed our threshold the reception room was looking quite good."

Children's Bedtime Story

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

The Trial Begins.

You'll find that it is always well
The truth and nothing else to tell.
—Old Mother Nature.

IT was a great event over in the Old Orchard. It was the most exciting event there for a long, long time. Speckles the Starling had been brought to trial. He was being tried by his feathered neighbors of the Old Orchard. He was charged with being a nuisance and altogether bad, and could you have seen the feathered folk gathered there I'm afraid you would have thought he hadn't a friend among them all. Not one single, solitary friend unless it were Bully the English Sparrow. Bully, as standing by him, not because they were particular friends, but because they were both regarded as being out of place in the Old Orchard. They were not Americans.

Sammy Jay was the first one to speak. He declared that Speckles the Starling had no business in the Old Orchard, that he had no business in the Green Forest, that he had no business on the Green Meadows. In short, that he had no business to be in the country. "There is only room for us who belong here," declared Sammy. "This fellow simply comes here and eats the food that belongs to us. He does no good. He is a quarrelsome fellow. He not only takes the food, but he also steals the homes of those who rightfully belong here in the Old Orchard. He is a robber. He is always trying to make trouble for other people."

"Can you prove that he steals the homes of other people?" inquired Tommy Tit the Chickadee.

"If Sammy can't, I can," spoke up Drummer the Woodpecker. "He drove me out of my home, so that I had to go over to the Green Forest to live."

"He stole the home of Winsome Bluebird," declared Yank the Nuthatch. "Everybody knows that. Everybody knows that last spring when Winsome returned from the Sunny South he found Speckles and Mrs. Speckles already established in his old home. And Speckles refused to move out. That was why Winsome Bluebird had to move up to Farmer Brown's dooryard. Everybody knows that."

"Caw! Caw!" said Blacky the Crow. "Has anyone else anything to say on this subject?"

"He even had the nerve to poke his head into my house and declare that I had no business there," spoke up Chatterer the Red Squirrel, who wouldn't have missed this trial for the world.

"Caw! Caw!" said Blacky the Crow.

"He wasn't far wrong," snapped Sammy Jay, who is forever picking a quarrel with Chatterer the Red Squirrel.

"Has anyone else anything against Speckles?" demanded Blacky the Crow.

"I have," said Slaty the Junco. "Time after time when I have started to get a meal Speckles has driven me away. Being more than twice my size, he can do it."

"That's because he's such a pig," declared Drummer the Woodpecker, "and he always acts as if he owned the Old Orchard. Personally, I think he's a public nuisance."

"Hear! Hear!" cried Sammy Jay approvingly.

Tommy Tit's bright little eyes were twinkling. "Judge Crow," said he, "may I ask the prisoner a few questions?"

Blacky the Crow looked very dignified as he nodded his head. "Ask him all the questions you please, Tommy Tit," said he.

Tommy's eyes twinkled more than ever. "I've got to think of some first," said he. And that made everybody laugh.

Beach Pajamas.

The pajamas that will grace Southern beaches this winter have unusually wide trousers. A clever suit seen recently had a top cut like a sailor's blouse, very wide trousers, and a long coat to wear over that. The material is a rough silk.

Household Hints

Fresh water containing a little lemon juice is splendid for an oily skin.

Scented note paper is no longer considered romantic but very poor form.

Burn the dried lemon rinds in the open fireplace. It will give the room a pleasant aroma.

A piece of oilcloth pasted on the bottom of the tin bread box will prevent it from rusting.

If mudstains are still in evidence on a garment after thorough brushing, rub them with a cut raw potato.

More Sleep For School

By Charles A. L. Reed, M. D., Former President of the American Medical Association.

YOUR child may wish to sleep much or little. If much, it is probably normal. Don't for the world call it "a sleepy head" and try to break up the habit. If it sleeps but little, especially if it is nervous or fidgety, it is not well and you should call your doctor.

Whatever the explanation of sleep—and no one, even the wisest, knows much about it—the best doctors are realizing nowadays that children do not get enough sleep. Until recently very little attempt was made to determine the proper relation of sleep to work to obtain the maximum efficiency. It was sufficient to recognize that too much or too little was bad, and to leave the amount necessary and the conditions under which it was obtained to that over-rated deity, Common-sense.

Nevertheless, Malcolm Gross assures us, the opinions of shrewd and experienced physicians are often as near the truth as a mathematical investigation, and before the growing science of public health gave us the accurate methods which are used today, many of them had stated clearly the necessity for greater care in securing sufficient sleep for the growing child.

Sir James Crichton Brown foretold an increase in nervous diseases and a lowering of the average intelligence if the sleep of the rising generation were not adequately safeguarded.

Dr. Hystop tells us that nearly all the cases of insomnia, brain-fag and neurasthenia with which he has had to deal have been the result of overwork and inability to obtain a sufficient amount of rest.

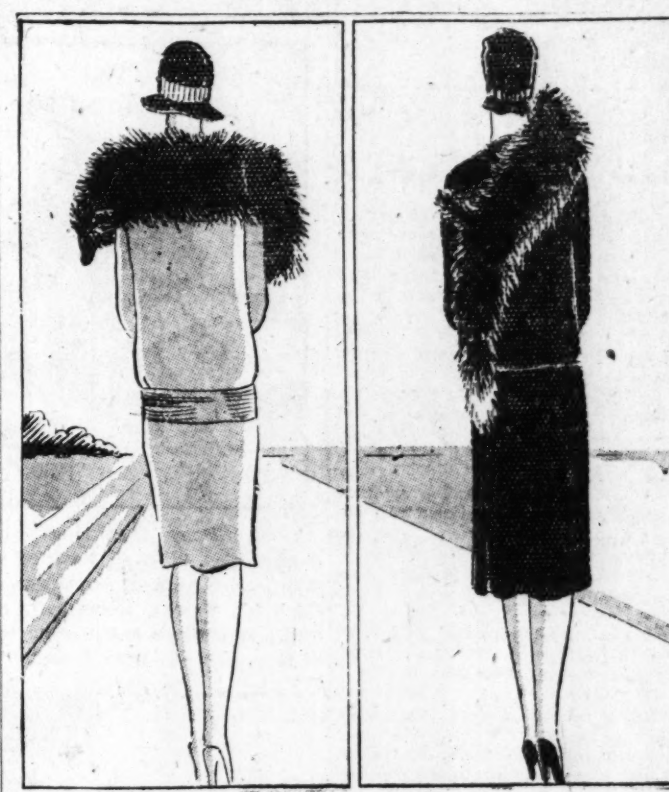

These are only two out of countless similar statements, and practical experiments have shown that complete lack of sleep can kill much more rapidly than complete starvation.

In 1908 Miss Alice Ravenshiff collected some figures of the hours of sleep obtained by elementary school children, which showed that even the hours between retiring and rising—a very different matter from the hours of actual sleep—were well below those advised by the most eminent authorities. She also found that the difference between the hours of sleep advised and those actually obtained rose with the child's age and that the irregularity rose also; both were most noticeable at the "errand boy" age. According to her results children get more sleep in winter than in summer. She finds that the quality as well as the quantity of sleep is reduced by bad home conditions, such as defective discipline, faulty habits in the parents, poverty, dirt and premature employment.

Terman and Hocking, working in 1911-12 in the Western States, also showed that children's actual hours of sleep were well below those recommended by Dr. Clement Dukes and others. This does not, of course, prove that the amount was insufficient; that would be very difficult. Nevertheless, it shows that, in the opinion of the best physicians, most school children had too little sleep 15 years ago. What evidence there is shows that they have, if anything, less nowadays.

This is a very practical question

FOLLIES OF FASHION By Marguerite Barnes

THE large woman can wear a fox scarf if she is tall enough to carry it. The manner of wearing it, too, makes the difference between smartness and a stodgey, peg-top appearance. The shoulders of the woman on the left seem enormous because she wears the scarf around them. Her hat also gives the feeling of width instead of height. The tight skirt makes her seem larger than the very slightly flaring skirt on the right. A hat the same value or color of the dress also adds to height. (The two figures are identical. The different effect is secured by the lines of the clothing.)

for you—if the parent of school children. See that they get not less than from eight to 10 hours. If home work—studies brought home from school—tends to keep them awake, as it often does, cut out the home work, send them to bed with relaxed minds as well as relaxed bodies.

Creamed Codfish With Eggs.

Two tablespoons butter, two tablespoons flour, four eggs, one cup rich milk, one cup shredded codfish, grated cheese, squares of buttered toast. For four rounds of toast make one cup of cream sauce, using the butter, flour and milk. Add the codfish freshened. Spread the fish on the four slices of toast dipped in boiling water and buttered. Set a carefully poached fresh egg above the fish on each slice of bread. Serve at once for breakfast, luncheon or supper.

Pillows Large, Pillows Small

EVEN a rapid hike through the shops makes one surmise what a popular present a pillow must be, from the mounds of them that are displayed at this season of the year. In honesty it must be said that most of them are unnoticeable or undesirable in fabric and color. On the other hand there are some new and some repetitions of attractive familiar types which are suggestive if one need pillows one's self, or for buying or making as a gift.

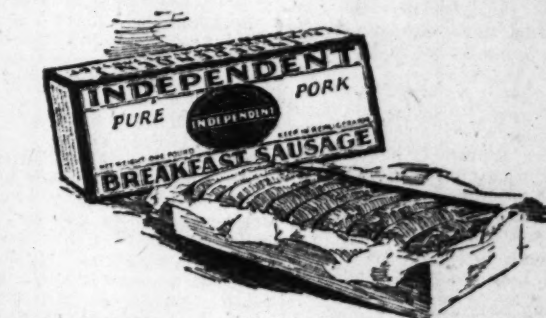

Of course we have always with us the little shoulder pillow, elbow or head pillow in every shape under the sun. These may be of anything from the humble calico and its first cousin, the Brittany print, to choice silk brocades or tuckered and corded taffetas. The pillows of the next larger size are being shown in oblong shapes with square edges and are of changeable taffeta.

The floor pillows which are the very opposite to these, being extremely large, often show more elaborate work and material. The half pillow is most frequently done in changeable taffeta with hand-made taffeta flowers. One large, oblong cushion was covered with cloth of gold with hand-made flowers of velvet.

Medium-sized pillows are made of all colors in velvet with corded edges and big black tassels at the corners. And the always-smart black pillow appears this year in quilted satin.

COURT RESUMES CONTEMPT TRIAL OF SINCLAIR FOR JURY TAMPERING

Judge Siddons Refuses to Dismiss Intimidation Charge Made Against Assistant Prosecutor.

OIL MAN'S ABSENCE CAUSES ALTERCATION

Littleton and O'Leary Nearly Come to Blows—Demand for an Apology Spurred by Latter.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON, Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—After a queer hiatus of three weeks, the contempt trial of Harry F. Sinclair, William J. Burns and their associates, charged with jury tampering, was resumed yesterday in Justice Frederick L. Siddons' court. By ordering its resumption, Justice Siddons may have saved himself from severe criticism in the Senate, where trouble undoubtedly was brewing.

Sinclair, however, was not present yesterday, and his absence was the cause of a bitter altercation in the courtroom, during which it appeared that the elderly and rotund Martin Littleton, the oil man's chief counsel, would come to blows with the youthful Assistant District Attorney, James O'Leary. It was the most bitter and disorderly scene of the entire trial.

Prosecutor Accused.

As has been told, the trial was interrupted Dec. 29, when George Hoover, another Sinclair attorney, formally charged that O'Leary had been guilty of practicing intimidation of Edward Kidwell, the talkative juror whose optimistic chatter about getting "a car a week long" was one of the factors responsible for a mistrial in the Sinclair-Fall case. Since that date, in obedience to Justice Siddons' instructions, the main trial has been suspended while O'Leary sought to find out what he was accused of, and endeavored to "purge" himself.

Justice Siddons' decision to resume the contempt case yesterday was as sudden and unexpected as his previous decision to suspend it. When he directed the prosecution to proceed with the original case, District Attorney Gordon asked if the court did not intend to announce a ruling on the intimidation charge. Calmly, Justice said he did not. Gordon reminded him that the court had declared, in taking up the intimidation charge, that it must be disposed of before the contempt case could proceed.

Questions Judge's Authority.

It was the opinion of the District Attorney's office, Gordon continued, that the intimidation phase should not have been taken up, and that it was in no place in a contempt trial, but now that it had been taken up and had occupied three weeks of the proceedings, he felt that the District Attorney's office was entitled to a ruling. Apparently nettled, Judge Siddons peered over his desk and demanded:

"Does anyone here as a member of the bar dare insinuate that part of this matter has been extra-judicial?"

Bluntly Gordon replied: "Yes, Your Honor, I do."

With equal bluntness he proceeded to add: "In carrying on this time-killing diversion, there has been complete co-operation between counsel for these six defendants and Kidwell and his attorney. Their charge that we obstructed justice was nothing on earth but a theatrical play staged by the defendants and Kidwell."

Hoover Resents Imputation.

Hoover leaped to his feet, declaring that he resented this imputation, and hotly insisted that in bringing the intimidation charge he had acted in good faith. He denied that there had been co-operation between the defendants and Kidwell. Thereupon Gordon reminded him of several examples of it, and reiterated that the charge stood.

Warming with indignation, Gordon proceeded to declare that, in his opinion, the Court had been wholly without authority to inquire into the intimidation charge, and was without authority to issue any order based upon it. O'Leary could not be punished, even if guilty of intimidation, except upon the regular preference of charges against him at a general term of court. Therefore, he
